GM Pay Boost OK'd By WSB

4-Cent Hike Allowed; Johnston Asks "Hold-The-Line" Policy

WASHINGTON, June 6 (AP) — The 18-man Wage Stabilization Board tonight unanimously approved a four-cent hourly wage increase for 350,000 General Motors workers.

The policy would apply to any other auto workers whose employers would grant the same increase without a price boost.

General Motors had announced in advance that the four cent boost, called for annually in its five-year union contract, would be paid without advancing the price of passenger cars, truck, tanks or other items which the huge corporation is producing.

Johnston Would Hold Line

Ford and Packard Motor Companies, on the other hand, had asked for wage board approval of a four-cent hourly bonus to workers for improving production during the past year, but had announced they would need a price advance to offset the wage hike.

The board's decision on productivity increases was announced after a long day of conference among the board members and Economic Stabilizer Eric Johnston.

Johnston had called for a "tough" hold-the-line policy but left the way open for limited productivity bonuses.

Such bonuses, he said, may only be granted if they are not accompanied by price boosts.

The nation's economic stabilization chief virtually slammed the door on labor leaders' demands for raising the present 10 per cent limit on wage hikes to at least 15 per cent.

Comes As Surprise

Johnston told newsmen that the policy he laid down in a long session with the Wage Stabilization Board was "tough."

"Any many people will not like it," he said.

Johnston set a limit of two per cent extra for productivity.

Stabilizer Johnston's "hold-the-line" policy on wages came as something of a surprise in view of earlier indications that a compromise might be in the offing to raise the lid.

Johnston's recommendation was immediately considered by the 18-man wage board, whose members all had different ideas on how to establish a pay formula for the future.

Nine Airmen Die In Crash Of Huge Air Force Plane

(Picture on page 10)

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., June 6 (AP) —A 60-passenger Air Force Stratofreighter crashed and burned near San Antonio's city limits today. All nine airmen aboard were killed.

The four-engine air giant, a C-97, knocked down a utility pole, ripped light wires, slashed a filling station and rammed a tavern as it fell. Then it exploded and burned.

It was the third fatal crash in three days involving giant cargo planes. A C-119 supercarrier fell near Jackson, Tenn., Monday night after an explosion, killing four. At New Boston, Tex., Sunday a C-82 "Flying Boxcar" blew up, hurling eight airmen to death in a cow pasture.

Today's crash occurred just after the C-97 had taken off from Kelly Air Force Base.

Most of the airmen were thrown clear of the plane as it fell. The rear of the filling station was set afire and destroyed. One gasoline pump was ignited. One wall of the tavern burned.

The only civilian casualty was Mrs. Sophie Zenner, 68, who suffered burns on her arm. She was standing near her car at the filling station, and was splashed with burning gasoline.

Louis Guana and Richard Alvarado, repairing a car at the side of the filling station, said a wing of the plane missed them by inches.

The crash brought the toll of Texas plane accidents in less than 24 hours to 13. Four wealthy East Texans were killed last night when their private plane crashed near Groesbeck, in Central Texas. They were on a pleasure flight to Mexico. Four Odessa, Tex., residents are missing on a flight from Ruidoso, N. M., to Odessa.

The C-97 was attached to Military Air Transport Service, which has been using the big planes to ferry Korea war wounded home. The craft is the cargo version of multi-engined passenger planes now in transatlantic service.

GM Announces 6-Day Shutdown

DETROIT, June 6 (AP)—General Motors announced today a temporary shutdown in passenger car manufacturing and assembly plants for six working days during the period from July 28 through Aug. 6.

The auto firm said the auction was being taken to avoid a "mass layoff" which would otherwise result from the deeper cut imposed by the government on use of critical materials for car production.

A company spokesman said there was no immediate estimate on the number of workers that would be affected.

Battle For Key Enemy Citadel Rises In Fury

Communist Gunfire Is Heaviest Of War

TOKYO, Thursday, June 7 (AP) — United Nations forces, after cracking the Reds' first main defense line, today approached the stronghold of Chorwon in North Korea.

Its fall would puncture the Communist "iron triangle" assembly area—but a field dispatch today said the Red defenders gave every sign they would stand or die there.

Allied armored columns lunged past piles of dead Chinese who had fought to hold the first main defenses south of Chorwon. There were 800 bodies on a single hill.

The advancing columns moved moved into the heaviest Communist artillery barrage of the war.

The battle for Chorwon, west anchor of the triangle, mounted in fury while other Allied columns drove toward the gates of Kumhwa, the east anchor.

150,000 Reds Defend Triangle

More than half of 300,000 Reds along the twisting 125-mile fighting front were defending the triangle.

"After three days of bitter fighting, United Nations forces appeared to have cracked the first main defense line south of Chorwon," AP Correspondent Jim Becker reported in a field dispatch today.

He said Chinese anti-tank guns and mortars poured a withering fire at the Allies "as the Reds indicated they intend to fight bitterly for the city."

But the Reds definitely were losing the fierce battle on the approaches. Much abandoned Communist equipment was being captured.

The Reds fought with the frenzy of despair trying to halt the Allied tanks.

AP Correspondent Stan Carter, in another field dispatch, said the Communists dug a deep tank trap across the Seoul-Chorwon road, then pounded the tanks from all sides with heavy mortars.

Nutcracker Tightens

A powerful nutcracker was tightening along the two main roads leading to the bastions of Chorwon and Kumwha 17 and 20 miles north of parallel 38.

United Nations tank task forces gained one to two miles in the central mountain corridors.

The cocky, battle-hardened Eighth Army "is standing at the front door now, hammering at the lock," reported AP Bureau Chief Robert Eunson.

He said the troops of 14 nations had smashed back to positions they held six weeks ago when the Chinese and Korean Reds launched the first of two costly and futile spring offensives.

Late last April the main Allied line was four miles from Chorwon or some 12 air miles north of parallel 38.

Heavily-censored field dispatches cloaked the exact positions in the current Allied rebound.

Valedictorian Dies But Her Address Read To Graduates

IRON RIVER, Mich., June 6 (AP)—The graduating class of Bates Township School will hear the valedictory address of 17-year-old Joan Beverly Shoquist tonight, and it most likely will move them to tears.

Joan Beverly will not be making the address herself. Her friend and classmate, Nora Benson, will be reading it, because Joan Beverly died today.

She was striken ill suddenly yesterday just after practicing for the commencement program.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 6 (AP) — The Navy said today the aircraft carrier Philippine Sea will arrive Saturday noon with 800 officers and enlisted men of Carrier Air Group Two, after serving for 11½ months in Pacific and Korean waters.

U. S. Demands Punishment For Russians Who Slew GI

WASHINGTON, June 6 (AP) — The United States charged today that Soviet authorities blocked an effective investigation of a shooting in which two Russian soldiers killed an American GI in Vienna "without provocation."

A sharp protest note made public by the State Department demanded punishment of the slayers and indemnity for the family of the American, Cpl. Paul J. Gresens of Rochester, N. Y.

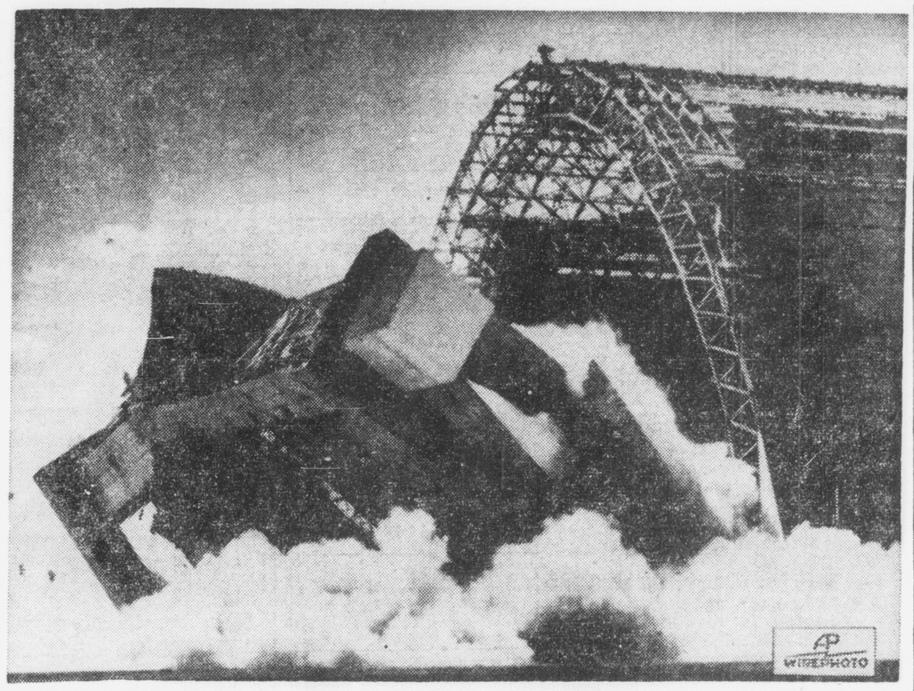
The shooting took place May 4 in the international district of Vienna, which is under four-power occupation.

The protest note was delivered yesterday in Moscow by Ambassador Alan G. Kirk, after repeated efforts on the scene failed to bring about Soviet cooperation in a joint investigation.

The incident was viewed here as the most serious in the history of the Vienna occupation.

Gresens and Cpl. Jack Morgan, Keokuk, Iowa, members of the 796th Police Battalion, were patrolling the international district in accordance with long standing procedure when they challenged two armed Soviet soldiers. The American protest said the Russians were "behaving suspiciously" and the MPs sought to establish their indentity. The Russians, the note charged, "opened fire without provocation."

Allies In Accord On Korea Political Goal, Acheson Says



750-Ton Door Blown Off Hanger

The giant concrete door on a wooden hangar used for blimps at the U. S. Navy installation at South Weymouth, Mass., was blown off yesterday with the aid of 525 pounds of dynamite in the first step toward demolition of the structure. The 175-foot high door weighed 750 tons. The blimp base is being converted into a jet air field.

Operations Now Reflect Decision, Senators Told

Advance Warnings Of Invasion Not Believed

WASHINGTON, June 6 (AP) — Secretary of State Acheson disclosed today the United Nations Allies have agreed on a political objective in Korea. He said it was reflected in military operations "now being carried out."

Recently Lt. Gen. James A. Van Fleet announced that his 8th Army has finished with the "pursuit phase" of the current drive against the Chinese Reds.

This could be interpreted as meaning that the political objective calls for a slowdown in the Allied drive in the neighborhood of the 38th parallel — possibly even a halt there.

But Acheson did not say so. What he told senators conducting the MacArthur hearing was that a political decision had been arrived at and that:

"I think the operations which are now being carried out indicate what the decision was."

Republican lawmakers have been critical of the fact that the armed forces were operating without a political directive other than the broad policy to halt aggression and unify Korea.

Significant Disclosure

Acheson said: "Some of the nations associated with us did not think that there should be military decisions to advance beyond the 38th parallel until the political decision to do so had been taken by the United Nations, particularly by the nations contributing forces.

"Mr. Bevin (British foreign minister) thought that major penetration should be avoided."

He said the question boiled down to "how far north could you go, and also the question of what was the wise political objective in the light of the military capability.

"We discussed that for some time and later on it has been resolved."

That disclosure is also significant in the light of Acheson's recent testimony that the United States may be willing to accept an armistice at the 38th parallel if there are assurances of no further Red aggression.

Earlier, the Secretary testified that Tokyo and Washington both had advance warning the North Korean Reds would attack South Korea in June, 1950 — but no one believed it.

Denies "Appeasement"

He told senators there were a series of false alarms over a period of months, followed on March 10, 1950, by a report from Gen. MacArthur's headquarters which said:

"Report received that Peoples Army (of North Korea) will invade South Korea in June, 1950."

Acheson went on to say that MacArthur headquarters, the Central Intelligence Agency, the Army Intelligence, and the State Depart-

Truman Will Ask Record $7 Billion Defense Project

WASHINGTON, June 6 (AP) — President Truman is reported ready to ask Congress for authorization to spend $7,000,000,000 to finance the largest military expansion program in the nation's history.

Congressional sources said today details and appropriation requests for the mammoth defense project, which would expand U. S. bases around the world, will be laid before Congress later this month.

Covering the needs of the Army, Air Force, Navy and Marines, the program will reach into every state of the union and to most of America's strategic stations aboard.

Details Still Secret

Details are still secret, but members of Congress said the expansion will require several years to complete, and that its cost might eventually reach $8,000,000,000. There is about $4,500,000,000 left in the 1951 defense budget to get the work started.

Rep. Vinson (D-Ga), chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, conferred with President Truman at the White House today. He has alerted the staff of the committee to be ready for hearings on the military bill in about two weeks.

Secret Construction Slated

The new facilities, it was indicated, are being planned to provide adequate "working room" for the nation's growing armed forces. In addition to reactivation of bases now on a standby basis, they will include new barracks, extension of runways at air fields to accomodate larger aircraft, and expansion of Navy shore installations. Some of the construction is expected to remain highly secret.

The strength of all American armed services probably will reach 3,462,000 before the end of summer. Under the pending draft and universal military service bill, a 5,000,000-man ceiling would be established.

U. S. Combat Casualties Increase To 68,352

WASHINGTON, June 6 (AP)—Announced U. S. combat casualties in Korea reached 68,352 today, an increase of 925 since last week.

The total, based on notifications to families through June 1, included 10,198 killed, 46,541 wounded and 11,613 missing.

Of the wounded, 1,202 have since died and 103 of the missing are known dead, raising total combat deaths to 11,503.

14-Inch Snowfall

CALGARY, Alta., June 6 (AP)—The worst June snow storm in history paralyzed Southern Alberta today.

A record 14 inches of wet snow was dumped on Calgary by mid-afternoon as the storm went through its second day. There was no immediate let-up in sight.

Car Gasoline Tank Is His Piggy Bank

COUNCIL BLUFFS, Ia., June 6 (AP)—Virgil Richie's piggy bank is gasoline powered.

When the former Council Bluffs man returned here from Chicago this week "flat broke," he didn't hunt up a friend; he hunted up a garageman, and had him drain and remove the gasoline tank from Richie's car. Then they shook out $137.50 in quarters and half dollars.

"When I have a quarter or a 50 cent piece I always drop it in the gas tank," Richie explained. "I know someday I'll need that change and I can't always dip into it when it's in the tank."

Beef Shortage Threat Mounts

CHICAGO, June 6 (AP)—Spotty beef shortages have begun turning up in parts of the country with the threat of widespread scarcity in the near future.

The volume of cattle to market was far below normal today for the third day in a row. Big packers passed up many of these limited offerings, claiming they couldn't buy them and stay within government price ceilings.

Slaughtering operations were curtailed or halted in more cities and additional slaughter house workers were laid off.

Regional spokesmen for the Office of Price Stabilization charged the situation was a "stubborn strike" and "an obvious attempt to create an artificial shortage."

Without identifying the persons or interests he blamed, Michael Howlett, head of the Chicago regional Office of Price Stabilization, said:

"They are trying to force Congress to eliminate controls on meat. They are putting their own selfish interests ahead of the welfare of the country."

House Kills Negro Vets Hospital Bill

WASHINGTON, June 6 (AP)—The House today killed 222 to 117, a bill to authorize the construction of a veterans hospital for negroes in memory of Booker T. Washington, negro educator.

The only negro members of Congress, Reps. Powell (D-NY) and Dawson (D-Ill), opposed the bill which had the support of Reps. Rankin (D-Miss) and Edith Rogers (R-Mass), ranking members of the Veterans Affairs Committee.

The measure called for a $5,000,000 authorization with which a 200-bed hospital would have been built in Franklin County, Va., the birthplace of Booker T. Washington.

Convert Flattops

WASHINGTON, June 6 (AP) — The Navy today announced a decision to modernize the Essex class aircraft carriers Randolph and Hornet.

Seth Richardson Quits Subversive Control Board

WASHINGTON, June 6 (AP)—Seth W. Richardson resigned today as chairman of the Subversive Activities Control Board. He said he was leaving the post because he had to undergo "critical surgical attention."

The White House made public his resignation and a letter from President Truman accepting it. Mr. Truman said he accepted the resignation effective June 30, "with reluctance and heartfelt regret."

The Subversive Activities Control Board was set up last year under the Internal Security Act, often called the McCarran Act.

That law requires foreign-dominated organizations to register with the Justice Department.

A panel of the board is now holding hearings on whether the Communist Party should be forced to register. Attorney General McGrath has ruled that it should.

The Senate has never confirmed Richardson or the other members of the board to hold their posts.

On that point, Richardson told Mr. Truman:

"I keenly regret not having yet been afforded a proper, timely opportunity for suitable consideration for confirmation by the Senate, but regardless of the merits of this delay and my intense wish to meet the issue, my doctors will not permit me to defer my medical necessities longer."

Richardson formerly headed the Civil Service Loyalty Review Board —top agency of the government's program for checking on the loyalty of federal workers. His conduct of that board had brought him under fire from some Republican members of Congress.

Rep. Cannon Predicts Truman's Nomination

WASHINGTON, June 6 (AP) — President Truman will be a candidate for president next year and will will the Democratic nomination, Rep. Cannon (D-Mo) told the House today.

Cannon, chairman of the Appropriations Committee, said he desired to make that prediction in order to beat radio commentators "to the draw" with their predictions.

His prediction, he said, is based on "cold reason."

"I'm not a prophet nor the son of a prophet," he said, "and all I know is what I read in the newspapers."

The Democrats cannot be expected to nominate anyone except President Truman because of his public record, Cannon said.

House OKs India Loan

WASHINGTON, June 6 (AP) — A compromise bill to loan India $190,000,000 for famine relief was passed by the House today and sent to the Senate. Passage was by a roll-call vote of 255 to 82.

Mrs. Mickey Rooney To File Divorce Suit

LOS ANGELES, June 6 (AP)—The third wife of Mickey Rooney, Actress Martha Vickers, will file suit for divorce in less than a week, her attorney said today.

Atty. Louis Goldman said the suit, charging cruelty, will be filed here as soon as a property settlement is signed. An agreement already has been reached.

Five Leaders Of Infamous SS Are Executed

U. S. Troops Guard Against Violence

LANDSBERG, Germany, Thursday, June 7 (AP)—Seven German war criminals were hanged by the United States Army early today for the murders of innocent thousands, it was officially announced.

The Nazi henchmen who carried out Hitler's policy of racial extermination were hanged behind the heavily guarded walls of Lansberg Prison, the place where Hitler wrote much of "Mein Kampf."

Three generals, two colonels and two junior officers of the infamous SS (elite guard) dropped to their deaths after the last of a long series of mercy appeals was rejected last night by the United States Supreme Court.

Those hanged were:

SS Gen. Oswald Pohl, destroyer of the Warsaw ghetto and chief administrator of the Nazi concentration camp system which annihilated hundreds of thousands of Jews.

Massacred Thousands

SS Gen. Otto Ohlendorf, who confessed that extermination units under his command slaughtered 90,000 civilians in the Soviet Union.

SS Gen. Erich Naumann, whose extermination force wiped out 3,530 Jews and gypsies on the Central Russian front in less than a month.

SS Col. Werner Braune, who directed the massacre of "racial undesirables in the Crimea."

SS Col. Paul Blobel, responsible for the massacre of 60,000, including 33,000 Jews, in a two-day bloodpath at Kiev in September, 1941.

SS Lt. Hans Schmidt, adjutant at Buchenwald when 5,000 victims died monthly in that concentration camp.

SS. Sgt. Georg Schallermair, roll-call leader at Muehlendorf,, a subsidiary of Dachau concentration camp, who personally beat inmates to death.

The seven were the last of 275 doomed by the U. S. war crimes tribunals of 1946-47.

After four years of reviews, congressional inquiries and legal maneuvers by the defense, American High Commissioner John J. McCloy refused clemency last Jan. 31 to the five top ranking SS officers on the list. Gen. Thomas S. Handy, Army commander in Germany, rejected the appeals of the other two men.

Clay Ignored Threats

Despite anonymous death threats against himself and his family, McCloy stood firm. Leaders of the West German republic sought in vain to persuade him to make another study of the cases.

Landsberg was patrolled by American constabulary jeeps with machine guns as the wives visited the men for the third "final" time. Afterwards, Frau Naumann suffered a heart attack.

Foreign and German news correspondents were barred from the prison. Some American civilian officials, however, attended the hangings, which were under military direction.

The homes of American prison authorities here were under strict guard against possible molestation by Nazi fanatics.

The seven women waited until nearly 2 a. m. in mental torment at an Landsberg hotel to learn of their widowhood.

Temporary graves had long since been dug inside the prison to receive the bodies, which later will be turned over to the families.

Bradley In England

"Ike," Back On Normandy's Beaches, Warns Red World

BAYEUX, France, June 6 (AP)—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower returned on D-Day plus seven years to Normandy's dearly - bought beaches and hedgerows today and bluntly warned the Communist world to remember the lesson taught Hitler's Nazis.

"All the free world would rally here again" if western civilization is threatened by aggression, the supreme commander declared at Ste. Mere Eglise, where the first waves of U. S. parachutes troopers paved the way for beach assaults on Hitler's Fortress Europe in 1944.

"Today the Western world is united to defend freedom before it is lost," he told a crowd of 8,000 in another short speech at the British cemetery in Bayeux.

Eisenhower flew to commemorate the occasion from his headquarters in Paris, where he heads a growing Atlantic pact army to defend Europe against any new aggression.

Accompanied by Mrs. Eisenhower and a group of aides, he motored across the blooming, sun-drenched Normandy countryside to Ste. Mere Eglise, the village where troopers of the famous 82nd and 101st Divisions began their drop the night before the dawn assault.

He placed a wreath on "Milestone Zero," which marks the start of the armored dash across France to the Rhine.

Nutcracker Tightens

A powerful nutcracker was tightening along the two main roads leading to the bastions of Chorwon and Kumwha 17 and 20 miles north of parallel 38.

United Nations tank task forces gained one to two miles in the central mountain corridors.

The cocky, battle-hardened Eighth Army "is standing at the front door now, hammering at the lock," reported AP Bureau Chief Robert Eunson.

He said the troops of 14 nations had smashed back to positions they held six weeks ago when the Chinese and Korean Reds launched the first of two costly and futile spring offensives.

Late last April the main Allied line was four miles from Chorwon or some 12 air miles north of parallel 38.

Heavily-censored field dispatches cloaked the exact positions in the current Allied rebound.

Valedictorian Dies But Her Address Read To Graduates

IRON RIVER, Mich., June 6 (AP)—The graduating class of Bates Township School will hear the valedictory address of 17-year-old Joan Beverly Shoquist tonight, and it most likely will move them to tears.

Joan Beverly will not be making the address herself. Her friend and classmate, Nora Benson, will be reading it, because Joan Beverly died today.

She was striken ill suddenly yesterday just after practicing for the commencement program.

U. S. Demands Punishment For Russians Who Slew GI

WASHINGTON, June 6 (AP) — The United States charged today that Soviet authorities blocked an effective investigation of a shooting in which two Russian soldiers killed an American GI in Vienna "without provocation."

A sharp protest note made public by the State Department demanded punishment of the slayers and indemnity for the family of the American, Cpl. Paul J. Gresens of Rochester, N. Y.

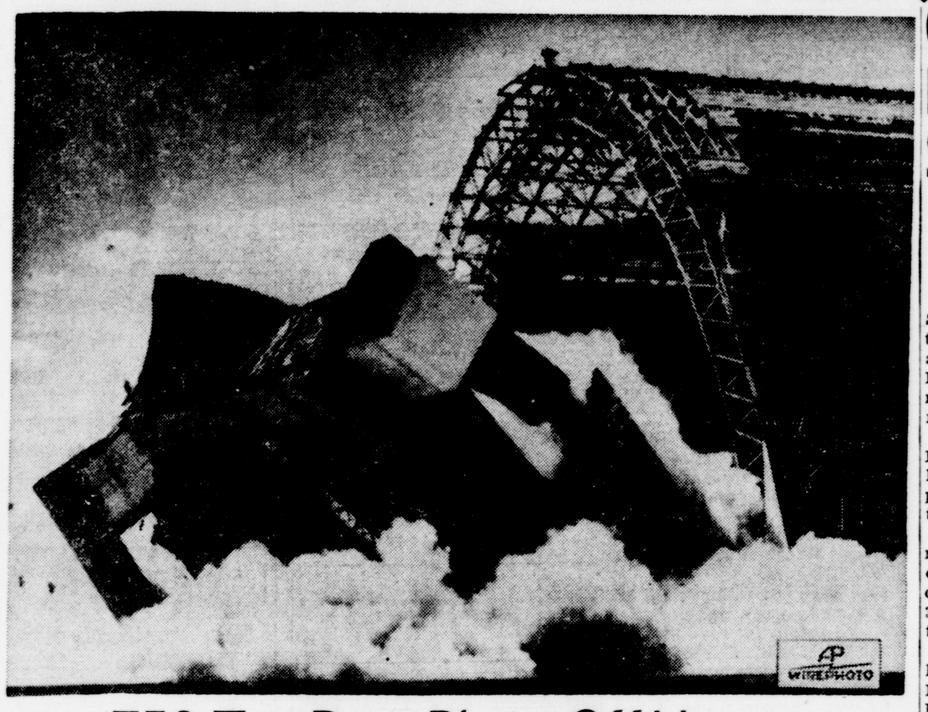
The shooting took place May 4 in the international district of Vienna, which is under four-power occupation.

The protest note was delivered yesterday in Moscow by Ambassador Alan G. Kirk, after repeated efforts on the scene failed to bring about Soviet cooperation in a joint investigation.

The incident was viewed here as the most serious in the history of the Vienna occupation.

Gresens and Cpl. Jack Morgan, Keokuk, Iowa, members of the 796th Police Battalion, were patrolling the international district in accordance with long standing procedure when they challenged two armed Soviet soldiers. The American protest said the Russians were "behaving suspiciously" and the MPs sought to establish their indentity. The Russians, the note charged, "opened fire without provocation."

Allies In Accord On Korea Political Goal, Acheson Says



750-Ton Door Blown Off Hanger

The giant concrete door on a wooden hangar used for blimps at the U. S. Navy installation at South Weymouth, Mass., was blown off yesterday with the aid of 525 pounds of dynamite in the first step toward demolition of the structure. The 175-foot high door weighed 750 tons. The blimp base is being converted into a jet air field.

Truman Will Ask Record $7 Billion Defense Project

WASHINGTON, June 6 (AP) — President Truman is reported ready to ask Congress for authorization to spend $7,000,000,000 to finance the largest military expansion program in the nation's history.

Congressional sources said today details and appropriation requests for the mammoth defense project, which would expand U. S. bases around the world, will be laid before Congress later this month.

Covering the needs of the Army, Air Force, Navy and Marines, the program will reach into every state of the union and to most of America's strategic stations aboard.

Details Still Secret

Details are still secret, but members of Congress said the expansion will require several years to complete, and that its cost might eventually reach $8,000,000,000. There is about $4,500,000,000 left in the 1951 defense budget to get the work started.

Rep. Vinson (D-Ga), chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, conferred with President Truman at the White House today. He has alerted the staff of the committee to be ready for hearings on the military bill in about two weeks.

Secret Construction Slated

The new facilities, it was indicated, are being planned to provide adequate "working room" for the nation's growing armed forces. In addition to reactivation of bases now on a standby basis, they will include new barracks, extension of runways at air fields to accomodate larger aircraft, and expansion of Navy shore installations. Some of the construction is expected to remain highly secret.

The strength of all American armed services probably will reach 3,462,000 before the end of summer. Under the pending draft and universal military service bill, a 5,000,000-man ceiling would be established.

U. S. Combat Casualties Increase To 68,352

WASHINGTON, June 6 (AP)—Announced U. S. combat casualties in Korea reached 68,352 today, an increase of 925 since last week.

The total, based on notifications to families through June 1, included 10,198 killed, 46,541 wounded and 11,613 missing.

Of the wounded, 1,202 have since died and 103 of the missing are known dead, raising total combat deaths to 11,503.

14-Inch Snowfall

CALGARY, Alta., June 6 (AP)—The worst June snow storm in history paralyzed Southern Alberta today.

A record 14 inches of wet snow was dumped on Calgary by mid-afternoon as the storm went through its second day. There was no immediate let-up in sight.

Car Gasoline Tank Is His Piggy Bank

COUNCIL BLUFFS, Ia., June 6 (AP)—Virgil Richie's piggy bank is gasoline powered.

When the former Council Bluffs man returned here from Chicago this week "flat broke," he didn't hunt up a friend; he hunted up a garageman, and had him drain and remove the gasoline tank from Richie's car. Then they shook out $137.50 in quarters and half dollars.

"When I have a quarter or a 50 cent piece I always drop it in the gas tank," Richie explained. "I know someday I'll need that change and I can't always dip into it when it's in the tank."

Beef Shortage Threat Mounts

CHICAGO, June 6 (AP)—Spotty beef shortages have begun turning up in parts of the country with the threat of widespread scarcity in the near future.

The volume of cattle to market was far below normal today for the third day in a row. Big packers passed up many of these limited offerings, claiming they couldn't buy them and stay within government price ceilings.

Slaughtering operations were curtailed or halted in more cities and additional slaughter house workers were laid off.

Regional spokesmen for the Office of Price Stabilization charged the situation was a "stubborn strike" and "an obvious attempt to create an artificial shortage."

Without identifying the persons or interests he blamed, Michael Howlett, head of the Chicago regional Office of Price Stabilization, said:

"They are trying to force Congress to eliminate controls on meat. They are putting their own selfish interests ahead of the welfare of the country."

House Kills Negro Vets Hospital Bill

WASHINGTON, June 6 (AP)—The House today killed 222 to 117, a bill to authorize the construction of a veterans hospital for negroes in memory of Booker T. Washington, negro educator.

The only negro members of Congress, Reps. Powell (D-NY) and Dawson (D-Ill), opposed the bill which had the support of Reps. Rankin (D-Miss) and Edith Rogers (R-Mass), ranking members of the Veterans Affairs Committee.

The measure called for a $5,000,000 authorization with which a 200-bed hospital would have been built in Franklin County, Va., the birthplace of Booker T. Washington.

Convert Flattops

WASHINGTON, June 6 (AP) — The Navy today announced a decision to modernize the Essex class aircraft carriers Randolph and Hornet.

Seth Richardson Quits Subversive Control Board

WASHINGTON, June 6 (AP)—Seth W. Richardson resigned today as chairman of the Subversive Activities Control Board. He said he was leaving the post because he had to undergo "critical surgical attention."

The White House made public his resignation and a letter from President Truman accepting it. Mr. Truman said he accepted the resignation effective June 30, "with reluctance and heartfelt regret."

The Subversive Activities Control Board was set up last year under the Internal Security Act, often called the McCarran Act.

That law requires foreign-dominated organizations to register with the Justice Department.

A panel of the board is now holding hearings on whether the Communist Party should be forced to register. Attorney General McGrath has ruled that it should.

The Senate has never confirmed Richardson or the other members of the board to hold their posts.

On that point, Richardson told Mr. Truman:

"I keenly regret not having yet been afforded a proper, timely opportunity for suitable consideration for confirmation by the Senate, but regardless of the merits of this delay and my intense wish to meet the issue, my doctors will not permit me to defer my medical necessities longer."

Richardson formerly headed the Civil Service Loyalty Review Board —top agency of the government's program for checking on the loyalty of federal workers. His conduct of that board had brought him under fire from some Republican members of Congress.

Rep. Cannon Predicts Truman's Nomination

WASHINGTON, June 6 (AP) — President Truman will be a candidate for president next year and will will the Democratic nomination, Rep. Cannon (D-Mo) told the House today.

Cannon, chairman of the Appropriations Committee, said he desired to make that prediction in order to beat radio commentators "to the draw" with their predictions.

His prediction, he said, is based on "cold reason."

"I'm not a prophet nor the son of a prophet," he said, "and all I know is what I read in the newspapers."

The Democrats cannot be expected to nominate anyone except President Truman because of his public record, Cannon said.

House OKs India Loan

WASHINGTON, June 6 (AP) — A compromise bill to loan India $190,000,000 for famine relief was passed by the House today and sent to the Senate. Passage was by a roll-call vote of 255 to 82.

Operations Now Reflect Decision, Senators Told

Advance Warnings Of Invasion Not Believed

WASHINGTON, June 6 (AP) — Secretary of State Acheson disclosed today the United Nations Allies have agreed on a political objective in Korea. He said it was reflected in military operations "now being carried out."

Recently Lt. Gen. James A. Van Fleet announced that his 8th Army has finished with the "pursuit phase" of the current drive against the Chinese Reds.

This could be interpreted as meaning that the political objective calls for a slowdown in the Allied drive in the neighborhood of the 38th parallel — possibly even a halt there.

But Acheson did not say so. What he told senators conducting the MacArthur hearing was that a political decision had been arrived at and that:

"I think the operations which are now being carried out indicate what the decision was."

Republican lawmakers have been critical of the fact that the armed forces were operating without a political directive other than the broad policy to halt aggression and unify Korea.

Significant Disclosure

Acheson said: "Some of the nations associated with us did not think that there should be military decisions to advance beyond the 38th parallel until the political decision to do so had been taken by the United Nations, particularly by the nations contributing forces.

"Mr. Bevin (British foreign minister) thought that major penetration should be avoided."

He said the question boiled down to "how far north could you go, and also the question of what was the wise political objective in the light of the military capability.

"We discussed that for some time and later on it has been resolved."

That disclosure is also significant in the light of Acheson's recent testimony that the United States may be willing to accept an armistice at the 38th parallel if there are assurances of no further Red aggression.

Earlier, the Secretary testified that Tokyo and Washington both had advance warning the North Korean Reds would attack South Korea in June, 1950 — but no one believed it.

Denies "Appeasement"

He told senators there were a series of false alarms over a period of months, followed on March 10, 1950, by a report from Gen. MacArthur's headquarters which said:

"Report received that Peoples Army (of North Korea) will invade South Korea in June, 1950."

Acheson went on to say that MacArthur headquarters, the Central Intelligence Agency, the Army Intelligence, and the State Depart-

Five Leaders Of Infamous SS Are Executed

U. S. Troops Guard Against Violence

LANDSBERG, Germany, Thursday, June 7 (AP)—Seven German war criminals were hanged by the United States Army early today for the murders of innocent thousands, it was officially announced.

The Nazi henchmen who carried out Hitler's policy of racial extermination were hanged behind the heavily guarded walls of Lansberg Prison, the place where Hitler wrote much of "Mein Kampf."

Three generals, two colonels and two junior officers of the infamous SS (elite guard) dropped to their deaths after the last of a long series of mercy appeals was rejected last night by the United States Supreme Court.

Those hanged were:

SS Gen. Oswald Pohl, destroyer of the Warsaw ghetto and chief administrator of the Nazi concentration camp system which annihilated hundreds of thousands of Jews.

Massacred Thousands

SS Gen. Otto Ohlendorf, who confessed that extermination units under his command slaughtered 90,000 civilians in the Soviet Union.

SS Gen. Erich Naumann, whose extermination force wiped out 3,530 Jews and gypsies on the Central Russian front in less than a month.

SS Col. Werner Braune, who directed the massacre of "racial undesirables in the Crimea."

SS Col. Paul Blobel, responsible for the massacre of 60,000, including 33,000 Jews, in a two-day bloodpath at Kiev in September, 1941.

SS Lt. Hans Schmidt, adjutant at Buchenwald when 5,000 victims died monthly in that concentration camp.

SS. Sgt. Georg Schallermair, roll-call leader at Muehlendorf, a subsidiary of Dachau concentration camp, who personally beat inmates to death.

The seven were the last of 275 doomed by the U. S. war crimes tribunals of 1946-47.

After four years of reviews, congressional inquiries and legal maneuvers by the defense, American High Commissioner John J. McCloy refused clemency last Jan. 31 to the five top ranking SS officers on the list. Gen. Thomas S. Handy, Army commander in Germany, rejected the appeals of the other two men.

Clay Ignored Threats

Despite anonymous death threats against himself and his family, McCloy stood firm. Leaders of the West German republic sought in vain to persuade him to make another study of the cases.

Landsberg was patrolled by American constabulary jeeps with machine guns as the wives visited the men for the third "final" time. Afterwards, Frau Naumann suffered a heart attack.

Foreign and German news correspondents were barred from the prison. Some American civilian officials, however, attended the hangings, which were under military direction.

The homes of American prison authorities here were under strict guard against possible molestation by Nazi fanatics.

The seven women waited until nearly 2 a. m. in mental torment at an Landsberg hotel to learn of their widowhood.

Temporary graves had long since been dug inside the prison to receive the bodies, which later will be turned over to the families.

Bradley In England

"Ike," Back On Normandy's Beaches, Warns Red World

BAYEUX, France, June 6 (AP)—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower returned on D-Day plus seven years to Normandy's dearly - bought beaches and hedgerows today and bluntly warned the Communist world to remember the lesson taught Hitler's Nazis.

"All the free world would rally here again" if western civilization is threatened by aggression, the supreme commander declared at Ste. Mere Eglise, where the first waves of U. S. parachutes troopers paved the way for beach assaults on Hitler's Fortress Europe in 1944.

"Today the Western world is united to defend freedom before it is lost," he told a crowd of 8,000 in another short speech at the British cemetery in Bayeux.

Eisenhower flew to commemorate the occasion from his headquarters in Paris, where he heads a growing Atlantic pact army to defend Europe against any new aggression.

Accompanied by Mrs. Eisenhower and a group of aides, he motored across the blooming, sun-drenched Normandy countryside to Ste. Mere Eglise, the village where troopers of the famous 82nd and 101st Divisions began their drop the night before the dawn assault.

He placed a wreath on "Milestone Zero," which marks the start of the armored dash across France to the Rhine.

Evidence Heard In Coal Dispute

All the testimony was taken yesterday in a seven-year-old dispute over nine acres of coal land on Dan's Mountain near Lonaconing but final arguments were not heard in Allegany County Circuit Court.

The arguments will come after a record of the testimony has been compiled and attorneys have an opportunity to read the full account. Associate Judge George Henderson will decide the case after hearing arguments.

First filed as an equity case in 1944, the court ruled a year later that there was no remedy in the matter in equity. Cross suits were filed in 1946 and 1947.

In cross suits, title to the land is being sought by the heirs of Jacob Miller, one party, and John Foote and Arthur Bond, the others concerned.

Leslie J. Clark and Matthew Mullaney are counsel for the Millers. Representing Foote and Bond are D. Lindley Sloan and Edward J. Ryan.

In attempting to prove the titles, Clark and Mullaney presented as evidence many deeds, one of which dated back to 1860.

Commercial College, Allegany and Beall High Schools. In 1917 he gave up teaching and turned to accounting.

Mrs. Wolfhope is the former Annie R. Cordial, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Peter J. Cordial, Frostburg. She attended Beall High School and taught in Allegany County schools prior to her marriage.

The couple spent their honeymoon, Mr. Wolfhope recalled last night, at Pittsburgh and eastern cities.

They have three children, Catherine, who is now Mrs. Chester Slade, Staunton, Va., Frank J. Wolfhope, Chevy Chase, Md., John B. Wolfhope, Cumberland, and six grandchildren.

Both are members of SS. Peter and Paul Church, and he is a member of Chief Justice Taney General Assembly, Fourth Degree Knights of Columbus, and Lodge No. 63, B. P. O. Elks. During 1914-15 he was state deputy of Cumberland Council No. 586, Knights of Columbus.

Yesterday morning the anniversary opened with a high mass at SS. Peter and Paul Church with Rev. Ernest Horning, OFM Cap., celebrating the mass, and two grandsons, Francis and Walter Slade, Staunton, Va. as acolytes. Thomas B. Cumiskey, Jr., sang the mass, "Ave Maria" and "Lord I Am Not Worthy."

Following mass a breakfast for members of the family was served at the Elks Club.

During last night's reception Mrs. Margaret Martz presided at the punch bowl, assisted by Mrs. William Martz. Music for the evening was provided by Lew Bittner at the solovox.

Vying For Vital Oil

Nationalization of Iranian oil properties could result in increased pressure for home ownership of oil resources elsewhere in the Middle East. That pressure would affect American oil companies most vitally in Iraq, where the Americans own 23.5 per cent of the Iraq Petroleum Company, and in Saudi Arabia, where ownership is entirely American.

American companies—Standard Oil of California and the Texas Company—equally divide the smaller Bahrein Petroleum Company between them through a Canadian subsidiary. Gulf Exploration Company owns 50 per cent of the Kuwait Oil Company, with the other half held by Anglo-Iranian.

Perhaps in anticipation of spreading nationalistic agitation, Aramco (Arabian-American Oil Company) in December, 1950, renegotiated its agreement with Saudi Arabia. The new deal increases the Saudi Arabian share from about one-third to one-half of the company's net income.

The largely British-owned Iraq Petroleum Company earlier in 1950 had revised its royalty schedule upward. Thereby Iraq stood to gain $47 million in revenue over a four-year period. (The renegotiated British agreement with Iran in 1949 had provided that Anglo-Iranian would double the royalty in exchange for a concession running through 1991.)

The American oil operations in the Middle East have actually strengthened governments there, according to Willard L. Thorp, Assistant Secretary of State for Economic Affairs, who said:

"In the strategically located Middle East, the United States has an important interest in a continuing political and economic stability. Political stability is to a large degree dependent upon the economic well-being of the area. The general economic well-being depends in turn largely on oil operations in which American companies have extensive interests."

The American concession in the Bahrein Islands has frequently been challenged by Iran. Mobs in the streets of Tehran have been demanding "restoration" of the islands to Iranian sovereignty. Long under British protection, the islands technically form an independent sheikhdom. The present ruler, Sheikh Sir Sulman bin Hamad al Khalifah, acceded in 1942.

The Iranians claim that the Bahrein Islands were in Iranian (Persian) hands when occupied by the Al Khalifah family in 1782. The British agree but reply that historically the islands are not Persian, and that even while under Persian control they had twice been occupied by independent Arab tribes.

Previous Persian protests to Britain over Bahrein were brought to a head in 1930 when Persia complained to the League of Nations over an oil concession granted a British syndicate by the Sheikh of Bahrein. The protests were repeated in 1932 when an American firm took over the concession. Since 1934 Persia has been on record at Washington as regarding the concession as null and void. And Bahrein has a large and prosperous Iranian colony.

If the American-owned Bahrein Company should revise its royalties upward, a continued flow of oil might be assured. But, contrary to one current suggestion, any such revision would be unlikely to take the pressure off the British in Iran. The Sheikh, who's getting 14 cents on every barrel produced, can hardly welcome any suggestion that he turn over any part of that to Iran.

Quints Are Seventeen

The Dionne quintuplets were 17 years old the other day. These girls, who have attracted world-wide attention since the day they were born to a French Canadian mother in a village in Ontario, have reached the age of young womanhood, old enough for high-heeled shoes and lipstick, dances and thoughts of marriage. While supervision by the Canadian government was beneficial in various ways, the quints had a still greater blessing, the love and care of sensible parents.

They are worth a million dollars in their own right, but none of this was gained through exploitation or vulgar showmanship. They have never been put on exhibition, although the opportunities were almost endless, and at profitable figures. Instead they have been carefully reared and educated to become efficient housewives in the French-Canadian tradition. They do "go with the boys," their father explains, but none so far has thoughts of marriage.

Modern parents, given to indulging their children in matters of money, could find a lesson in the rearing of the Dionne girls in that respect. Until recently their allowance was $2 a month, in spite of their wealth. Now it has been increased to $5, because the girls protested that $2 doesn't buy much these days.

The birthday party was a simple affair. Just one cake, with 17 candles, and a few square dances with the boys in the neighborhood.

Nazis Are Stirring

During the recent diplomatic jockeying, which has been similar to that which often precedes great wars, little was heard until recently from the great segment of German people which formerly composed the Nazi party and supported Hitler in his quest for world power.

The Nazis went underground at the end of the last war, and only in the last few months have they shown signs of activity and come out into the open. They threaten to become a factor in the controversy between the East and the West.

The Socialist Reich party has developed enough voting strength to arouse concern in Washington. Although drastically punished by the last war, the German people have not lost the dream of world recognition instilled by Hitler. This is particularly true of the younger generations.

While the various pan-German organizations may differ on details, they would be as one in any effort to restore their country in world affairs.

In the meantime they oppose in various ways the establishment of a new government for their country which does not embrace the teachings of Hitler. They have not been happy during the years of occupation, and while they hate Russia they are not in sympathy with Allied efforts to restore their country as a nation of free people.

How To Keep Well

Correction Of Narrowed Heart Valves

Leakage of the heart is now amenable to surgery. This does not apply to all types but chiefly to one of the worst offenders: mitral stenosis. More than 200 such procedures have been performed by a Philadelphia surgeon and the results to date have been surprisingly good.

Mitral stenosis refers to narrowing of the valve that separates the auricle and cventriele on the left side of the pumping apparatus. It has become thickened and scarred because of a bout of rheumatic fever years previously. Now and then the opening is so small that the heart has difficulty pushing the blood through. When this condition occurs there is a backflow into the lungs and the victim becomes short of breath and fatigued and occasionally coughs up blood. When the heart no longer is able to stand the additional strain, dropsy ensues that requires the use of digitalis, the elimination of salt from the diet, and drugs that encourage the kidneys to increase their output.

Although the operation is considered new, it is in reality the cumulative work of many years of research. At the turn of the century surgeons tried to open up the narrowed valves. An occasional patient survived the ordeal but the mortality was so high the procedure was abandoned; but each surgeon profited by the mistakes of his predecessors. Ultimately the present technic came into being and for this, the medical profession gives credit to the young chest surgeon, Dr. Robert P. Glover of Philadelphia. He devised a method in which a knife is fastened to the index finger and inserted into a small opening in the left auricle. The finger plugs the hole so that bleeding is not a problem. By maneuvering the knife under the guidance of the finger, a slitlike incision is made through the narrowed opening. This permits the valve to close and open in a somewhat normal manner.

In 1948 the operation was performed on five patients desperately ill. Three died but the other two did so well that Dr. Glover was determined to go on. The next year he had 21 cases with three deaths and, in 1950, there were 89, with six deaths. Altogether 200 patients have been operated upon with an over-all mortality of fewer than 11 per cent. This death rate is not startling because more than this number would have succumbed because of the defect without operation. Many of his patients were dropsical when they entered the hospital. One young woman was so breathless she could not leave her room; eight days later she was out of the hospital and could walk up and down the street. A coal miner had been incapacitated for years because of weakness and shortness of breath. After the operation he returned to his former occupation and, despite advice to the contrary, makes a daily trip of 300 feet into and out of the mine, climbing up and down a ladder.

Not all of the outcomes have been this good; some patients still are bothered with shortness of breath but none has coughed up blood since undergoing surgery and the majority can lie flat in bed without breathing difficulties. Many have discontinued the use of digitalis and a low salt diet. It is believed that the procedure will prove more satisfactory when it is not utilized as a last resort. The plan is recommended shortly after the appearance of the first symptoms of heart disease such as shortness of breath and weakness.

TOMORROW: Dr. Van Dellen discusses blood transfusions.

ALLERGIC PAIN

D. R. writes: Can allergy cause arthritis?

REPLY

Yes, but it usually is temporary. A typical example is the aching that follows the use of serums or certain drugs. There is a possibility that allergy plays a role in the joint pains associated with rheumatoid arthritis, rheumatic fever, and brucellosis. This aspect is now under intensive investigation and we should learn the answers in the next few years.

LONG AUTO TRIP

Mrs. A. writes: Is a 1,500 mile auto trip too much for a 3 year old girl?

REPLY

Not if the child is fed well and allowed frequent intermissions to stretch her legs and break the monotony. Adequate sleep is essential. It is not advisable to travel after 5 or 6 p.m. As a rule, the driver encounters more discomfort on such a trip than the child.

MINOR AND MAJOR

L. S. writes: Can a person have both petit and grand mal together?

REPLY

Yes, but not simultaneously. Many victims of epilepsy encounter both types of seizures.

YAWNING WITH TEARS

C. M. writes: Why do my eyes tear when I yawn?

REPLY

Because the tear ducts are squeezed during the maneuver.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

MacArthur Will Make Texas A Political Test Case; Sen. Tobey Blisters Unwilling Crime Witness; Color Television Creates Quandary

WASHINGTON. — General MacArthur's trip to Texas next week is much more than a visit to admiring friends. Actually, it is a carefully timed test of political popularity to see whether the General's backers should go any further in their latent plans to push him for the presidency.

One of the men behind the Texas trip is Congressman Al "Doc" Miller of Nebraska, the same GOP leader who promoted MacArthur for President in 1948. It was partly on Congressman Miller's urging that MacArthur entered the Wisconsin and Nebraska primaries.

Both primaries proved a disappointment, and MacArthur felt that his Republican friends had let him down. Earlier, in Tokyo, the General had talked with optimistic visiting politicians who predicted that the American people would rise up almost unanimously to draft him. MacArthur had even told Lieut. Gen. Robert Eichelberger, then in Tokyo, that he expected to be summoned back to the United States during the GOP convention in 1948 and that he, Eichelberger, should be prepared to take over as commander of Japan.

However, MacArthur headquarters during the 1948 convention proved to be the emptiest place in Philadelphia, and MacArthur felt that the party had taken him up on the high mountain.

Therefore, his close friends now say that this time he doesn't want to be let down. So the trip to Texas is something of a test.

Since the visit to Chicago was disappointing, in that the General failed to fill Soldiers' Field, and since the trip to Murfreeboro, Tenn., also failed to fill the local stadium, the Texas visit will be extremely important. Texas has promised a tremendous ovation, and if it goes over big, his close political backers hope that MacArthur will let his campaign cap be tossed into the ring.

Chicago Crime

No television cameras were focused on Chicago businessman George S. May, affiliate of racketeers, when he testified before the Senate Crime Committee. Even the newsmen were barred as May was called to explain his pay-offs to the racketeers from the gambling profits of his Tam O'Shanter Club in the Chicago suburbs. May allegedly paid 40 per cent of his slot machine take to racketeer Ed Vogel, Cook County slot machine king. But on this he did no talking.

He did talk freely about his efficiency-expert business, the George S. May Company, which has handled contracts for big corporations, city governments and even foreign governments. However, he was mum on all questions that might lead to his dealings with the racketeers and even refused to tell whether he was a member of a golf club.

This got under the skin of the crusading Senator from New Hampshire, Charles Tobey, who exploded:

"Evidently this bird is going to do everything but answer questions. We are wasting time. He has been in cahoots with gambling and all the crooked elements.

"He goes and plays with the scum of the earth, and we are not supposed to find out about it. Well, we will find out about it, and we will get it before we are through. Let me say one thing. Here is a man, George S. May, who stands before us and tells us about his great business enterprise, his nation-wide advertising and that he is a respectable man. And yet, before a committee of his peers—a committee of the United States Senate—he hesitates to answer a simple question, 'Are you a member of a golf club?'"

Then, swinging around to May, Tobey blistered: "Before God, is your life so encumbered by these things that you cannot answer even a simple question of that sort? Why don't you come out in the open and say, I'll give you everything you want to know. My life is an open book.' Then, if your life is an open book and you are clean and honest, just spill it. Why do you want to cover up? What a position for a man to be in with his soul that he cannot answer such a simple question! What is all your money worth if you cannot look men in the face like the men who are sitting here? I would rather be dead than be in that position myself—with all your money and all your power!"

May's face burned a flaming red. But he continued his refusal to answer questions.

Washington Pipeline

Senators have turned down a request from Vice President Barkley for a new Cadillac limousine. They decided he can get along on his old 1949 Cadillac . . . The Dutch Government has made discreet inquiries to find out whether it's true that "Call Me Madame" Perle Mesta may be the next American ambassador to Holland. The Dutch are not at all happy over this prospect . . . The Agriculture Department has requested the National Production Authority to tone down its reduction of steel allocations for farm machinery which would mean one-third fewer new farm machines next year. Secretary Brannan says the farms can't stand such a drastic cut . . . The Democrats kicked Senator McCarthy off the Appropriations Committee to make room for another Democrat. But his successor, Senator Robertson of Virginia, has been voting just as Republican as McCarthy. On Robertson's first day with the committee, he ignored his Democratic colleagues and gave his proxy to Republican Senator Cordon of Oregon.

TV Quandary

The recent Supreme Court decision approving the CBS brand of color television has the TV industry in a quandary as to whether it should use limited allocations of aluminum and copper for the manufacture of new TV sets or color converters for old TV receivers.

There's not enough of the scarce materials for both. As a result, television manufacturers soon will request the National Production Authority to increase their supplies of aluminum and copper—also steel. TV spokesmen will argue that the FCC will open up new areas for television reception next fall and that there will not be enough TV sets to supply the increased demand.

However, the NPA will deny the appeal and will tell TV makers they must decide for themselves whether to continue making black and white sets or enter the color field.

Paralysis In Britain

LONDON

The paralysis of the British government will probably be recorded by history as one of the major misfortunes of the year 1951. In the past six years, the British Labor party has rebuilt this country's economy from its bombed out foundations—an enormous achievement which should never be forgotten. But the fact that the Labor government is paralyzed today, especially in the sphere of foreign affairs, is also too important to be ignored.

What are the origins of this paralysis in Britain? One is inclined to name simple disillusionment as the root cause.

Within the last month, a symbolic confession has been published by the popular British philosopher, C. E. M. Joad. He was once a typically hopeful believer in the perfectibility of human society by science and socialism. But he has now grimly announced that the expected triumphs of science seem to him to be mainly horrors. And he has added that socialism, instead of bringing that promised fuller life to all, appears to be bringing everyone down to the same dead level of dreariness.

What this confession symbolizes is British socialism's loss of drive and even, perhaps, of faith in its own future. The British welfare state has been established, but that job is mainly done. Industry has been nationalized, but without producing any economic heaven on earth. National planning has been tested, but the unanticipated drawbacks have almost balanced the hoped for advantages.

Intensified By Strain

Hence even the leaders and ideamen of British socialism, although they are still proud of what has been done already, are visibly very far from clear in their own minds about what ought to be done next. The effect of this loss of any sure sense of direction is in turn vastly intensified by the increasing strain of the cold war.

The strain of the cold war takes two forms. First there is the influence, in itself directly paralyzing, of the weakness of Britain's present defenses. Second, there is the conflict between Socialist notions of the right thing to do, and the policy decisions that cold war necessities relentlessly enforce. The major casualty of this conflict is, of course, the brilliant Aneurin Bevan.

To be sure, there is no longer any doubt at all that Bevan's only reason for leaving the cabinet was the charge for health service false teeth and spectacles imposed by the courageous new Chanceller of the Exchequer, Hugh Gaistkell. If Gaitskell had yielded a little to Bevan on this one point, as most of the cabinet hoped he would, Bevan would have stayed. Thus the general attack on the British defense program in Bevan's resignation speech was essentially an argument after the event.

At the same time, however, there is also no doubt that Bevan spoke for the 30 or 40 leftwing Socialist members of Parliament who would put welfare state requirements. This group inevitably exercises a disproportionate influence, in view of the government's precarious majority. And they are all the more important now that they have found a leader in Bevan, who used to be the boldest advocate of a tough line with Moscow.

Morrison Inexperienced

Finally, the British government now suffers from a simple problem of leadership, disclosed by the replacement of Ernest Bevin with Herbert Morrison. Morrison has always focused exclusively on Britain's internal problems. He is primarily a party manager, dangerously inexperienced in the harsh realities of foreign policy. Yet Morrison was considered the only man available with sufficient stature to be made Foreign Secretary when brave old Bevin's health finally failed.

In these circumstances, only the dominant authority of stout hearted Prime Minister Attlee prevents a really disastrous outcome—such as another desperate effort to see a phony "peace in our time." But even Attlee cannot overcome the simple weariness of his government, its deep reluctance to take any positive action or even to reach any serious long range decision. Such is the nature of Britain's partial paralysis, whose effects will be left in the whole staggering range of world problems, all the way around the circle from German rearmament to the Korean War, until there is some sort of upheaval here.

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — The price of peace in Korea may not have been officially intimated as yet by Moscow, but it begins to look as if the Russians, who are the real power behind the Communist Chinese, are raising that price.

The Russians want the North Atlantic Treaty dissolved or at least those features abandoned which have to do with rearmament in Europe, and the use of military bases overseas for American forces prohibited.

Unquestionably the Moscow regime wants concessions in Europe, for the Communists, too, believe that the situation is global and that what happens in Asia affects what happens in Europe.

The Russians are not the kind of traders who announce what cards they hold. They have from the start of the long-drawn-out discussions at the Paris Conference of the Deputies of the Foreign Ministers insisted that what they want is an over-all settlement. They have asked that the above two points be put on the program for discussion. The United States, Great Britain and France have indicated that they do not care to discuss these questions. The Russians, on the other hand, are in no hurry. They probably had an idea that the UN members which have forces in Korea would sooner or later get tired of the fray and that eventually the price of a "cease fire" and settlement in Korea would appeal to their opponents.

Official View Is Opposite

Curiously enough, the official view of the Department of State, as expressed by Secretary Acheson to Congress, is just the opposite—that America will continue the war in Korea until the Communist Chinese get tired and they agree to a "cease fire."

It doesn't seem logical, based on previous history, that the Russians should allow their satellite—Communist China—to wind up a struggle which, fortunately for the Russians, has been limited in scope so that no serious Russian interests are jeopardized. The official policy of the UN is almost an assurance on this—for it has been decided not to push too close to the Manchurian border, not to conduct any aerial reconnaissance over Manchurian territory, not to blockade any Chinese ports, and not to pursue any planes that come from Manchurian bases.

With such assurances of a limited war, the Russians need give little concern to the war being waged by Communist China in Korea, whether it takes five months or five years more. The Russians apparentl can continue to supply the Com munist Chinese with arms an equipment and "volunteer" plane As long as no Russian soldiers ar being used, the chances are tha Russian public opinion is unawar of any serious international cris or threat of war to them.

So far as the American peopl are concerned, they are being tol that a war of indefinite duratio in Koera is not as bad as a gener war. John Foster Dulles in speech a few days ago spoke of th present situation in annual term —he mentioned casualties of 100,0 a year and an expenditure of a extra $20,000,000,000 a year fo armament as things to which th American people may have to gro accustomed.

Two-Way Interpretation

Another idea that has been ad vanced is that to take positiv measures now to end the war migh bring Russia directly into it becaus China has a mutual assistance pac with Moscow. Many members c Congress have pointed out that thi permits a double-barreled interpre tation. If the UN forces, for in stance, push the Communis Chinese too hard in Korea, the Rus sians may have to go to their aic So the objective has to be rathe ambiguous—to kill as many Com munist Chinese as possible withou doing such an effective job as t cause the Communist regime t appeal to Russia to come in an help. The very statement of thes alternatives reveals the preposterou nature of some of the assumption that have governed the testimon of American officials recently befor Senate committees.

The realism of the whole situatio is to note that the Russians ar in an advantageous position t negotiate an end of the Korea War by insisting on concessions i Europe. Just why the Russian should fear a war threat in the Fa East and be indifferent to th threat of a reorganized army unde Eisenhower and military bases over seas close to their own territor and sources of supply is not to clear. It may be assumed that th Russians started the Korean Wa and the Asia turbulence to hav trading or bargaining points agains the pressure being employed agains them in Europe. Hence, if th Allies want to get extricated fron Asia, they face the demands for a trade in Europe. Whatever th arguments for appeasement in Asia Russian doubtless sees them as a sign of weakness which invites a "negotiated" peace in Europe.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

The Missing Link

Someday, perhaps 10 or 20 years from now, the American people may discover from the record how we have become involved in this costly, damaging and dangerous Korean War. From the testimony of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, it is clear that we were not prepared for the enterprise and that we had appraised it incorrectly. This is the gist of General Vandenberg's testimony.

Senator Karl E. Mundt, in a scholarly study of the Korean War, makes this point:

'In times past, some American Presidents have involved the fighting forces of this country in minor skirmishing abroad or in short lived small deal wars by executive action. Up to now, however, these have always been justified as a military venture ordered by the President in defense of either the lives or property of America or in fulfillment of treaty obligations which had been entered into by the country through constitutional processes. It appears that neither of these justifications is applicable to the war in Korea in which we were involved by the action of President Truman last June."

What then was the issue there? In the Iranian situation (1946), the very existence of the United Nations was involved, for if Soviet Russia could, through local instigation, destroy a member state, how could the United Nations survive? Soviet Russia retreated from supporting the Azerbaijan Revolution.

In the matter of the Israel-Arab War (1947-49), the United Nations intervened to establish a truce and eventually a peace. This added to the stature of the United Nations and set a precedent, similar to the solution of the Indonesian civil war (1945-1949).

On the other hand, the United Nations permitted the conquest of the whole of China by Soviet Russia through the Chinese Communist party without intervention or protest. In fact, members of the United Nations, such as Great Britain, hurried to recognize the conquerors while the defeated party remained a member of the United Nations by treaty. The United Nations prestige suffered a marked decline as a result of its handling of the China situation.

In the struggle between India and Pakistan over Kashmir, the United Nations has displayed a weakness which exhibits its incapacity to handle political situations objectively. Simply stated, the United Nations has thus far failed to solve the Kashmir problem.

The Korean situation originated in the confusions at the Yalta conference. As neutrality in the Pacific war was Russia's blackmail weapon, Stalin did not lightly abandon it. Thus was developed the concept of the 38th Parallel in Korea and the Russian possession of the warm water ports and the railroads of Manchuria. This betrayal of China and secret revocation of the Cairo Agreement (1943) laid the basis for our troubles in Korea.

But why did not the United Nations attempt to handle Korea as it did Iran, Indonesia and Israel? The answer is that the United Nations fears Soviet Russia now. It appears from the testimony before the Russell Committee that the United States also fears Soviet Russia now. In a word, the position of Russia in international relations has grown to be so strong that the United Nations has ceased to be capable of applying the provisions of its charter and has thrown the burden upon the United States.

This is the time table:

North Korea attacked south of the 38th Parallel on June 25;

The Security Council issued its cease-fire order on June 25;

The United States was fighting in Korea on June 27;

The President issued his statement announcing that he had ordered troops in on June 27. The Security Council endorsed the President's position.

Too much happened in those three days. We must still ask: Was the United States involved before or after the Security Council passed its resolution? The United States is bound by no provision of the United Nations Charter to take on the entire responsibility of a United Nations war, nor are we bound to commit more of our men than any other United Nations members.

What then happened to throw so huge a responsibility upon this one country? Furthermore, almost as soon as we got into this war, the United Nations backed away from its stated objectives and the British led a group of countries to make Korea a Russian success by limiting our efforts in Korea and by advancing the cause of Soviet China.

The entire matter is puzzling even from the standpoint of historic objectivity and the testimony before the Russell Committee increases the difficulties of understanding how we got into it so deeply.

Vying For Vital Oil

Nationalization of Iranian oil properties could result in increased pressure for home ownership of oil resources elsewhere in the Middle East. That pressure would affect American oil companies most vitally in Iraq, where the Americans own 23.5 per cent of the Iraq Petroleum Company, and in Saudi Arabia, where ownership is entirely American.

American companies—Standard Oil of California and the Texas Company—equally divide the smaller Bahrein Petroleum Company between them through a Canadian subsidiary. Gulf Exploration Company owns 50 per cent of the Kuwait Oil Company, with the other half held by Anglo-Iranian.

Perhaps in anticipation of spreading nationalistic agitation, Aramco (Arabian-American Oil Company) in December, 1950, renegotiated its agreement with Saudi Arabia. The new deal increases the Saudi Arabian share from about one-third to one-half of the company's net income.

The largely British-owned Iraq Petroleum Company earlier in 1950 had revised its royalty schedule upward. Thereby Iraq stood to gain $47 million in revenue over a four-year period. (The renegotiated British agreement with Iran in 1949 had provided that Anglo-Iranian would double the royalty in exchange for a concession running through 1991.)

The American oil operations in the Middle East have actually strengthened governments there, according to Willard L. Thorp, Assistant Secretary of State for Economic Affairs, who said:

"In the strategically located Middle East, the United States has an important interest in a continuing political and economic stability. Political stability is to a large degree dependent upon the economic well-being of the area. The general economic well-being depends in turn largely on oil operations in which American companies have extensive interests."

The American concession in the Bahrein Islands has frequently been challenged by Iran. Mobs in the streets of Tehran have been demanding "restoration" of the islands to Iranian sovereignty. Long under British protection, the islands technically form an independent sheikhdom. The present ruler, Sheikh Sir Sulman bin Hamad al Khalifah, acceded in 1942.

The Iranians claim that the Bahrein Islands were in Iranian (Persian) hands when occupied by the Al Khalifah family in 1782. The British agree but reply that historically the islands are not Persian, and that even while under Persian control they had twice been occupied by independent Arab tribes.

Previous Persian protests to Britain over Bahrein were brought to a head in 1930 when Persia complained to the League of Nations over an oil concession granted a British syndicate by the Sheikh of Bahrein. The protests were repeated in 1932 when an American firm took over the concession. Since 1934 Persia has been on record at Washington as regarding the concession as null and void. And Bahrein has a large and prosperous Iranian colony.

If the American-owned Bahrein Company should revise its royalties upward, a continued flow of oil might be assured. But, contrary to one current suggestion, any such revision would be unlikely to take the pressure off the British in Iran. The Sheikh, who's getting 14 cents on every barrel produced, can hardly welcome any suggestion that he turn over any part of that to Iran.

Quints Are Seventeen

The Dionne quintuplets were 17 years old the other day. These girls, who have attracted world-wide attention since the day they were born to a French Canadian mother in a village in Ontario, have reached the age of young womanhood, old enough for high-heeled shoes and lipstick, dances and thoughts of marriage. While supervision by the Canadian government was beneficial in various ways, the quints had a still greater blessing, the love and care of sensible parents.

They are worth a million dollars in their own right, but none of this was gained through exploitation or vulgar showmanship. They have never been put on exhibition, although the opportunities were almost endless, and at profitable figures. Instead they have been carefully reared and educated to become efficient housewives in the French-Canadian tradition. They do "go with the boys," their father explains, but none so far has thoughts of marriage.

Modern parents, given to indulging their children in matters of money, could find a lesson in the rearing of the Dionne girls in that respect. Until recently their allowance was $2 a month, in spite of their wealth. Now it has been increased to $5, because the girls protested that $2 doesn't buy much these days.

The birthday party was a simple affair. Just one cake, with 17 candles, and a few square dances with the boys in the neighborhood.

Nazis Are Stirring

During the recent diplomatic jockeying, which has been similar to that which often precedes great wars, little was heard until recently from the great segment of German people which formerly composed the Nazi party and supported Hitler in his quest for world power.

The Nazis went underground at the end of the last war, and only in the last few months have they shown signs of activity and come out into the open. They threaten to become a factor in the controversy between the East and the West.

The Socialist Reich party has developed enough voting strength to arouse concern in Washington. Although drastically punished by the last war, the German people have not lost the dream of world recognition instilled by Hitler. This is particularly true of the younger generations.

While the various pan-German organizations may differ on details, they would be as one in any effort to restore their country in world affairs.

In the meantime they oppose in various ways the establishment of a new government for their country which does not embrace the teachings of Hitler. They have not been happy during the years of occupation, and while they hate Russia they are not in sympathy with Allied efforts to restore their country as a nation of free people.

Correction Of Narrowed Heart Valves

Leakage of the heart is now amenable to surgery. This does not apply to all types but chiefly to one of the worst offenders: mitral stenosis. More than 200 such procedures have been performed by a Philadelphia surgeon and the results to date have been surprisingly good.

Mitral stenosis refers to narrowing of the valve that separates the auricle and cventriele on the left side of the pumping apparatus. It has become thickened and scarred because of a bout of rheumatic fever years previously. Now and then the opening is so small that the heart has difficulty pushing the blood through. When this condition occurs there is a backflow into the lungs and the victim becomes short of breath and fatigued and occasionally coughs up blood. When the heart no longer is able to stand the additional strain, dropsy ensues that requires the use of digitalis, the elimination of salt from the diet, and drugs that encourage the kidneys to increase their output.

Although the operation is considered new, it is in reality the cumulative work of many years of research. At the turn of the century surgeons tried to open up the narrowed valves. An occasional patient survived the ordeal but the mortality was so high the procedure was abandoned; but each surgeon profited by the mistakes of his predecessors. Ultimately the present technic came into being and for this, the medical profession gives credit to the young chest surgeon, Dr. Robert P. Glover of Philadelphia. He devised a method in which a knife is fastened to the index finger and inserted into a small opening in the left auricle. The finger plugs the hole so that bleeding is not a problem. By maneuvering the knife under the guidance of the finger, a slitlike incision is made through the narrowed opening. This permits the valve to close and open in a somewhat normal manner.

In 1948 the operation was performed on five patients desperately ill. Three died but the other two did so well that Dr. Glover was determined to go on. The next year he had 21 cases with three deaths and, in 1950, there were 89, with six deaths. Altogether 200 patients have been operated upon with an over-all mortality of fewer than 11 per cent. This death rate is not startling because more than this number would have succumbed because of the defect without operation. Many of his patients were dropsical when they entered the hospital. One young woman was so breathless she could not leave her room; eight days later she was out of the hospital and could walk up and down the street. A coal miner had been incapacitated for years because of weakness and shortness of breath. After the operation he returned to his former occupation and, despite advice to the contrary, makes a daily trip of 300 feet into and out of the mine, climbing up and down a ladder.

Not all of the outcomes have been this good; some patients still are bothered with shortness of breath but none has coughed up blood since undergoing surgery and the majority can lie flat in bed without breathing difficulties. Many have discontinued the use of digitalis and a low salt diet. It is believed that the procedure will prove more satisfactory when it is not utilized as a last resort. The plan is recommended shortly after the appearance of the first symptoms of heart disease such as shortness of breath and weakness.

ALLERGIC PAIN

D. R. writes: Can allergy cause arthritis?

REPLY

Yes, but it usually is temporary. A typical example is the aching that follows the use of serums or certain drugs. There is a possibility that allergy plays a role in the joint pains associated with rheumatoid arthritis, rheumatic fever, and brucellosis. This aspect is now under intensive investigation and we should learn the answers in the next few years.

LONG AUTO TRIP

Mrs. A. writes: Is a 1,500 mile auto trip too much for a 3 year old girl?

REPLY

Not if the child is fed well and allowed frequent intermissions to stretch her legs and break the monotony. Adequate sleep is essential. It is not advisable to travel after 5 or 6 p.m. As a rule, the driver encounters more discomfort on such a trip than the child.

MacArthur Will Make Texas A Political Test Case; Sen. Tobey Blisters Unwilling Crime Witness; Color Television Creates Quandary

WASHINGTON. — General MacArthur's trip to Texas next week is much more than a visit to admiring friends. Actually, it is a carefully timed test of political popularity to see whether the General's backers should go any further in their latent plans to push him for the presidency.

One of the men behind the Texas trip is Congressman Al "Doc" Miller of Nebraska, the same GOP leader who promoted MacArthur for President in 1948. It was partly on Congressman Miller's urging that MacArthur entered the Wisconsin and Nebraska primaries.

Both primaries proved a disappointment, and MacArthur felt that his Republican friends had let him down. Earlier, in Tokyo, the General had talked with optimistic visiting politicians who predicted that the American people would rise up almost unanimously to draft him. MacArthur had even told Lieut. Gen. Robert Eichelberger, then in Tokyo, that he expected to be summoned back to the United States during the GOP convention in 1948 and that he, Eichelberger, should be prepared to take over as commander of Japan.

However, MacArthur headquarters during the 1948 convention proved to be the emptiest place in Philadelphia, and MacArthur felt that the party had taken him up on the high mountain.

Therefore, his close friends now say that this time he doesn't want to be let down. So the trip to Texas is something of a test.

Since the visit to Chicago was disappointing, in that the General failed to fill Soldiers' Field, and since the trip to Murfreeboro, Tenn., also failed to fill the local stadium, the Texas visit will be extremely important. Texas has promised a tremendous ovation, and if it goes over big, his close political backers hope that MacArthur will let his campaign cap be tossed into the ring.

Chicago Crime

No television cameras were focused on Chicago businessman George S. May, affiliate of racketeers, when he testified before the Senate Crime Committee. Even the newsmen were barred as May was called to explain his pay-offs to the racketeers from the gambling profits of his Tam O'Shanter Club in the Chicago suburbs. May allegedly paid 40 per cent of his slot machine take to racketeer Ed Vogel, Cook County slot machine king. But on this he did no talking.

He did talk freely about his efficiency-expert business, the George S. May Company, which has handled contracts for big corporations, city governments and even foreign governments. However, he was mum on all questions that might lead to his dealings with the racketeers and even refused to tell whether he was a member of a golf club.

This got under the skin of the crusading Senator from New Hampshire, Charles Tobey, who exploded:

"Evidently this bird is going to do everything but answer questions. We are wasting time. He has been in cahoots with gambling and all the crooked elements.

"He goes and plays with the scum of the earth, and we are not supposed to find out about it. Well, we will find out about it, and we will get it before we are through. Let me say one thing. Here is a man, George S. May, who stands before us and tells us about his great business enterprise, his nation-wide advertising and that he is a respectable man. And yet, before a committee of his peers—a committee of the United States Senate—he hesitates to answer a simple question, 'Are you a member of a golf club?'"

Then, swinging around to May, Tobey blistered: "Before God, is your life so encumbered by these things that you cannot answer even a simple question of that sort? Why don't you come out in the open and say, I'll give you everything you want to know. My life is an open book.' Then, if your life is an open book and you are clean and honest, just spill it. Why do you want to cover up? What a position for a man to be in with his soul that he cannot answer such a simple question! What is all your money worth if you cannot look men in the face like the men who are sitting here? I would rather be dead than be in that position myself—with all your money and all your power!"

May's face burned a flaming red. But he continued his refusal to answer questions.

The Dutch Government has made discreet inquiries to find out whether it's true that "Call Me Madame" Perle Mesta may be the next American ambassador to Holland. The Dutch are not at all happy over this prospect . . . The Agriculture Department has requested the National Production Authority to tone down its reduction of steel allocations for farm machinery which would mean one-third fewer new farm machines next year. Secretary Brannan says the farms can't stand such a drastic cut . . . The Democrats kicked Senator McCarthy off the Appropriations Committee to make room for another Democrat. But his successor, Senator Robertson of Virginia, has been voting just as Republican as McCarthy. TV Quandary

The recent Supreme Court decision approving the CBS brand of color television has the TV industry in a quandary as to whether it should use limited allocations of aluminum and copper for the manufacture of new TV sets or color converters for old TV receivers.

There's not enough of the scarce materials for both. As a result, television manufacturers soon will request the National Production Authority to increase their supplies of aluminum and copper—also steel. TV spokesmen will argue that the FCC will open up new areas for television reception next fall and that there will not be enough TV sets to supply the increased demand.

However, the NPA will deny the appeal and will tell TV makers they must decide for themselves whether to continue making black and white sets or enter the color field.

Paralysis In Britain

LONDON

The paralysis of the British government will probably be recorded by history as one of the major misfortunes of the year 1951. In the past six years, the British Labor party has rebuilt this country's economy from its bombed out foundations—an enormous achievement which should never be forgotten. But the fact that the Labor government is paralyzed today, especially in the sphere of foreign affairs, is also too important to be ignored.

What are the origins of this paralysis in Britain? One is inclined to name simple disillusionment as the root cause.

Within the last month, a symbolic confession has been published by the popular British philosopher, C. E. M. Joad. He was once a typically hopeful believer in the perfectibility of human society by science and socialism. But he has now grimly announced that the expected triumphs of science seem to him to be mainly horrors. And he has added that socialism, instead of bringing that promised fuller life to all, appears to be bringing everyone down to the same dead level of dreariness.

What this confession symbolizes is British socialism's loss of drive and even, perhaps, of faith in its own future. The British welfare state has been established, but that job is mainly done. Industry has been nationalized, but without producing any economic heaven on earth. National planning has been tested, but the unanticipated drawbacks have almost balanced the hoped for advantages.

Intensified By Strain

Hence even the leaders and ideamen of British socialism, although they are still proud of what has been done already, are visibly very far from clear in their own minds about what ought to be done next. The effect of this loss of any sure sense of direction is in turn vastly intensified by the increasing strain of the cold war.

The strain of the cold war takes two forms. First there is the influence, in itself directly paralyzing, of the weakness of Britain's present defenses. Second, there is the conflict between Socialist notions of the right thing to do, and the policy decisions that cold war necessities relentlessly enforce. The major casualty of this conflict is, of course, the brilliant Aneurin Bevan.

To be sure, there is no longer any doubt at all that Bevan's only reason for leaving the cabinet was the charge for health service false teeth and spectacles imposed by the courageous new Chanceller of the Exchequer, Hugh Gaistkell. If Gaitskell had yielded a little to Bevan on this one point, as most of the cabinet hoped he would, Bevan would have stayed. Thus the general attack on the British defense program in Bevan's resignation speech was essentially an argument after the event.

At the same time, however, there is also no doubt that Bevan spoke for the 30 or 40 leftwing Socialist members of Parliament who would put welfare state requirements. This group inevitably exercises a disproportionate influence, in view of the government's precarious majority. And they are all the more important now that they have found a leader in Bevan, who used to be the boldest advocate of a tough line with Moscow.

Morrison Inexperienced

Finally, the British government now suffers from a simple problem of leadership, disclosed by the replacement of Ernest Bevin with Herbert Morrison. Morrison has always focused exclusively on Britain's internal problems. He is primarily a party manager, dangerously inexperienced in the harsh realities of foreign policy. Yet Morrison was considered the only man available with sufficient stature to be made Foreign Secretary when brave old Bevin's health finally failed.

In these circumstances, only the dominant authority of stout hearted Prime Minister Attlee prevents a really disastrous outcome—such as another desperate effort to see a phony "peace in our time." But even Attlee cannot overcome the simple weariness of his government, its deep reluctance to take any positive action or even to reach any serious long range decision. Such is the nature of Britain's partial paralysis, whose effects will be left in the whole staggering range of world problems, all the way around the circle from German rearmament to the Korean War, until there is some sort of upheaval here.

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — The price of peace in Korea may not have been officially intimated as yet by Moscow, but it begins to look as if the Russians, who are the real power behind the Communist Chinese, are raising that price.

The Russians want the North Atlantic Treaty dissolved or at least those features abandoned which have to do with rearmament in Europe, and the use of military bases overseas for American forces prohibited.

Unquestionably the Moscow regime wants concessions in Europe, for the Communists, too, believe that the situation is global and that what happens in Asia affects what happens in Europe.

They have asked that the above two points be put on the program for discussion. The United States, Great Britain and France have indicated that they do not care to discuss these questions. The Russians, on the other hand, are in no hurry. They probably had an idea that the UN members which have forces in Korea would sooner or later get tired of the fray and that eventually the price of a "cease fire" and settlement in Korea would appeal to their opponents.

Official View Is Opposite

Curiously enough, the official view of the Department of State, as expressed by Secretary Acheson to Congress, is just the opposite—that America will continue the war in Korea until the Communist Chinese get tired and they agree to a "cease fire."

It doesn't seem logical, based on previous history, that the Russians should allow their satellite—Communist China—to wind up a struggle which, fortunately for the Russians, has been limited in scope so that no serious Russian interests are jeopardized. The official policy of the UN is almost an assurance on this—for it has been decided not to push too close to the Manchurian border, not to conduct any aerial reconnaissance over Manchurian territory, not to blockade any Chinese ports, and not to pursue any planes that come from Manchurian bases.

With such assurances of a limited war, the Russians need give little concern to the war being waged by Communist China in Korea, whether it takes five months or five years more. The Russians apparentl can continue to supply the Com munist Chinese with arms an equipment and "volunteer" plane As long as no Russian soldiers ar being used, the chances are tha Russian public opinion is unawar of any serious international cris or threat of war to them.

So far as the American peopl are concerned, they are being tol that a war of indefinite duratio in Koera is not as bad as a gener war. John Foster Dulles in speech a few days ago spoke of th present situation in annual term —he mentioned casualties of 100,00 a year and an expenditure of a extra $20,000,000,000 a year fo armament as things to which th American people may have to gro accustomed.

Two-Way Interpretation

Another idea that has been ad vanced is that to take positiv measures now to end the war migh bring Russia directly into it becaus China has a mutual assistance pac with Moscow. Many members c Congress have pointed out that thi permits a double-barreled interpre tation. If the UN forces, for in stance, push the Communis Chinese too hard in Korea, the Rus sians may have to go to their aic So the objective has to be rathe ambiguous—to kill as many Com munist Chinese as possible withou doing such an effective job as t cause the Communist regime t appeal to Russia to come in an help. The very statement of thes alternatives reveals the preposterou nature of some of the assumption that have governed the testimon of American officials recently befor Senate committees.

The realism of the whole situatio is to note that the Russians ar in an advantageous position t negotiate an end of the Korea War by insisting on concessions i Europe. Just why the Russian should fear a war threat in the Fa East and be indifferent to th threat of a reorganized army unde Eisenhower and military bases over seas close to their own territor and sources of supply is not to clear. It may be assumed that th Russians started the Korean Wa and the Asia turbulence to hav trading or bargaining points agains the pressure being employed agains them in Europe. Hence, if th Allies want to get extricated fron Asia, they face the demands for a trade in Europe. Whatever th arguments for appeasement in Asia Russian doubtless sees them as a sign of weakness which invites a "negotiated" peace in Europe.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

The Missing Link

Someday, perhaps 10 or 20 years from now, the American people may discover from the record how we have become involved in this costly, damaging and dangerous Korean War. From the testimony of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, it is clear that we were not prepared for the enterprise and that we had appraised it incorrectly. This is the gist of General Vandenberg's testimony.

Senator Karl E. Mundt, in a scholarly study of the Korean War, makes this point:

'In times past, some American Presidents have involved the fighting forces of this country in minor skirmishing abroad or in short lived small deal wars by executive action. Up to now, however, these have always been justified as a military venture ordered by the President in defense of either the lives or property of America or in fulfillment of treaty obligations which had been entered into by the country through constitutional processes. It appears that neither of these justifications is applicable to the war in Korea in which we were involved by the action of President Truman last June."

What then was the issue there? In the Iranian situation (1946), the very existence of the United Nations was involved, for if Soviet Russia could, through local instigation, destroy a member state, how could the United Nations survive? Soviet Russia retreated from supporting the Azerbaijan Revolution.

In the matter of the Israel-Arab War (1947-49), the United Nations intervened to establish a truce and eventually a peace. This added to the stature of the United Nations and set a precedent, similar to the solution of the Indonesian civil war (1945-1949).

On the other hand, the United Nations permitted the conquest of the whole of China by Soviet Russia through the Chinese Communist party without intervention or protest. In fact, members of the United Nations, such as Great Britain, hurried to recognize the conquerors while the defeated party remained a member of the United Nations by treaty. The United Nations prestige suffered a marked decline as a result of its handling of the China situation.

In the struggle between India and Pakistan over Kashmir, the United Nations has displayed a weakness which exhibits its incapacity to handle political situations objectively. Simply stated, the United Nations has thus far failed to solve the Kashmir problem.

The Korean situation originated in the confusions at the Yalta conference. As neutrality in the Pacific war was Russia's blackmail weapon, Stalin did not lightly abandon it. Thus was developed the concept of the 38th Parallel in Korea and the Russian possession of the warm water ports and the railroads of Manchuria. This betrayal of China and secret revocation of the Cairo Agreement (1943) laid the basis for our troubles in Korea.

But why did not the United Nations attempt to handle Korea as it did Iran, Indonesia and Israel? The answer is that the United Nations fears Soviet Russia now. It appears from the testimony before the Russell Committee that the United States also fears Soviet Russia now. In a word, the position of Russia in international relations has grown to be so strong that the United Nations has ceased to be capable of applying the provisions of its charter and has thrown the burden upon the United States.

This is the time table:

North Korea attacked south of the 38th Parallel on June 25;

The Security Council issued its cease-fire order on June 25;

The United States was fighting in Korea on June 27;

The President issued his statement announcing that he had ordered troops in on June 27. The Security Council endorsed the President's position.

Too much happened in those three days. We must still ask: Was the United States involved before or after the Security Council passed its resolution? The United States is bound by no provision of the United Nations Charter to take on the entire responsibility of a United Nations war, nor are we bound to commit more of our men than any other United Nations members.

What then happened to throw so huge a responsibility upon this one country? Furthermore, almost as soon as we got into this war, the United Nations backed away from its stated objectives and the British led a group of countries to make Korea a Russian success by limiting our efforts in Korea and by advancing the cause of Soviet China.

The entire matter is puzzling even from the standpoint of historic objectivity and the testimony before the Russell Committee increases the difficulties of understanding how we got into it so deeply.

Washington Whirl

By AUSTINE

PARIS—Besides Senator Richard Nixon knitting his brows over luncheon at the Ritz, and Sugar Ray Robinson driving his shocking pink Cadillac on the Champs Elysee, I've seen General Tony Biddle (he and his Margaret are fixing up the country place they've rented near Versailles) talking at Maxim's to Albert, the owner. . . . Albert says he's coming to U. S. this fall, "for business and some fun." . . . Any American fellow in Paris would have enjoyed watching ex-Chicago Congressman Charles Dewey window-shopping with his wife along the Rue de la Paix. . . . Or world-famous jeweler Pierre Cartier (I had not seen him since a dinner during the war at the late Evelyn Walsh McLean's) taking a spring stroll—to his car at the curb. . . . And waddling past him—a fellow who has enough jewelry to go into competition with Cartier—the corpulent Aga Khan. . . . Not even his daughter-in-law Rita's disturbing "stand" could apparently spoil his pleasures in Paris.

AUSTINE

Oh, so many present-day personalities brighten Paris. . . . But as I wrote before, when wandering the ancient streets at dusk, or late at night, you may meet some Paris personalities of the past:

That well-rounded, well-preserved brunette with her amber skin and sweet smile who jumps into a carriage with a rather shabby little man. . . . They have been married by the mayor of Paris in the Rue de Capucines. . . . That carriage and those handsome horses once belonged to the King and Queen. . . . But the little groom (five feet, three inches) and his bride, while far from royal birth themselves) will do much better. . . . Right now the carriage hurries them off for a first honeymoon night to her house . . . She rented it six months ago, hasn't paid rent but Josephine de Beauharnais believes in her luck and never worries about money . . . When they get to her house her little pug dog barks loudly! . . . Resents and bites the newcomer, General Bonaparte.

"I wanted her to put him out," Napoleon would write later of the dog, "but she told me I must accept him for a bedfellow, or seek other quarters. It was take him or leave him—and her."

So far, one of few times in his career the General yielded.

•—•—•

Benjamin Franklin in Paris . . . Not her officially yet, just a tourist, and he goes out to Versailles to stand and watch with the other tourists while Queen Marie Antoinette dines in public . . . Franklin stands with the rest of the gaping crowd, following every forkful . . . He, too, in a few years, will rocket to fame . . . Cheering crowds will follow the envoy from the new Republic, Franklin, through the streets . . . Voltaire will make his one speech in English when he meets the grandson of Franklin . . . Holding out his hands over the little boy's head, Voltaire chokes with emotion, "God and Liberty!"

•—•—•

Into this 14th Century doorway, here in another street, Rue des Archives, passed a winsome, lonely girl from Scotland, Mary Stuart, Queen of France . . . She came often to this mansion to visit her uncles (her mother's brothers), the Duke of Guise and the Cardinal of Lorraine.

•—•—•

Ghosts aplenty has Rue de Saint Honore . . . Like the dainty saleslgirl of a millinery shop, Jeanne Vaubernier, who flirted over the counter with roues of the day . . . Later in her career the pretty thing met Louis XV, became the Countess du Barry, and moved into a small but lavish apartment at Versailles, ruled France through her royal lover, and died on the guillotine only a few blocks away (Place de la Concorde) from the millinery shop . . . A big circle in a few years for a little lady . . .

•—•—•

On the same street a famous young couple, he 16 and she 14, lived after they were married . . . Later he would fight beside General Washington for the cause of liberty, go down in American history — immortal Marquis of Lafayette.

In a cafe up the street, a dandy who had his hair done every day, Robespierre, devil of the Reign of Terror, sat while Marie Antoinette was on trial for her life before the monstrous Revolutionary Tribunal . . . He threw his plate on the ground in fury when one of his stooges came running in to tell him that the people could not believe the absurdly black charges made against the Queen.

Saint Vincent de Paul running a soup kitchen in another street, giving comfort to his beloved poor.

Slipping back farther into the past, you might see Catherine de Medicis arriving in pomp from Italy, an ugly heiress of 14, to marry King Henry the Second . . . Henry loved another lady, but Catherine sent her packing when he was killed in a tournament at the jousting ground right here where you stand in the Tuilleries Gardens . . . Widowed Queen Catherine kept a whole batch of soothsayers and astrologers busy at all times . . . You can still examine the staircase she climbed nightly to the palace roof with the star-gazers to study the heavens.

•—•—•

But, heavenly or not, you do meet such interesting stars in Paris — personalities of past and present!

Know the secret of standing out attractively in a group snapshot? Here are Powers model posing tips!

SECRETS OF CHARM

by JOHN ROBERT POWERS

It takes either an expert director or some expert posing, if you are to look attractive in a photograph with more than two other people! Take a look at those group snaps in your own collection. Chances are that when they were being taken, all the posers thought they looked like movie stars—but in the prints, every body seemed to have too many hands feet and hips.

Think of this ungainly effect the next time you are in a group shot and pose with a little more eclat.

Smart Maneuver

For purposes of instruction, let's say you are in the middle of the group. Naturally you crowd together so that you all get into the picture. But you be the smart one and turn your hips on the diagonal or "away from the camera" as the models say. This not only makes more room for the next fellow, but most importantly, insures that you will be the one in the picture who looks slim. Be careful though, in assuming the diagonal-hip position that you don't turn your shoulders, too. Keep them as square to the camera as possible. This strategy will prevent your having to twist and wrinkle your neck in order to look at the birdie. That would be anything but the effect you want.

Should you link arms with the person on one side of you, place your other arm behind the person on the opposite side. In this way, you get at least one hand out of the camera's eye. And whatever you do, don't let the hand that shows dangle. If you've clasped the arm of the next person, place your hand lightly on his arm. If your fellow poser has beaten you to the draw and clasped your arm first, bring your hand in close to your body at waist level; turn it over so that the palm is up and very little is visible except your relaxed thumb and forefinger.

Foot Position

As for your feet, simply place the heel of one foot into the instep of the other and relax your knees. This stance reduces the girth of your legs by giving you a single legline. Try it in front of your mirror and see for yourself.

While there, also practice this position of your arms: Place either hand behind you at waist level, allowing plenty of separation between your elbow and your body. This is the ticket for gracing the end positions in a group. Next time you are on the end of the line, let it be your graceful arm that gives finesse to the outside edge of the picture!

ON THE LINE

By BOB CONSIDINE

NEW YORK—(INS)—The passing show:

Officials of the U. S. Naval Academy, watching the class of 1951 get itself married at the academy chapel in wholesale lots, are at a loss as to how to discourage the practice.

The Navy is not agin matrimony as an institution but has made an effort during the past two years to persuade the class of '51 to postpone the rush on the chapel until at least the ink on its diplomas was dry. Some first classmen were told that graduation marriages have a divorce rate of 50 per cent.

A year ago, before the "ring dance," traditional time of betrothals, the future admirals were asked to try to control themselves and keep from becoming engaged. The sermon fell on barren soil. For a number of days after the recent graduation, the chapel turned out happy newlyweds on a 30-minute-per-wedding production line, seven hours a day.

Some older salts have suggested that the Navy re-install its old rule against marriage until the graduate is two years out of the academy. But it is not likely that this will gain favor. It led in the past to tremendous conspiracies in the name of surreptitious wedded bliss.

One midshipman with nearly three years of work left before him at the academy, before his graduation day, made an application for use of the chapel for his wedding ceremony. He named a specific day and hour, three years hence. The academy was a little dubious, but went to the trouble of asking him the name of the bride-to-be.

"Haven't met her yet," the indestructible optimist replied.

Think you've had a tough time lately? Then read this, please. It is an account of her expulsion from Communist China by a Sister of Charity named Mary Carita Pendergast, one of nine nuns who recently reached the safety of their convent in New Jersey after years of devoted and unselfish work in China. It goes:

"The day we left Yuanling, the police and Red army women cooked up a demonstration against us at the bus terminal. They forced a crowd of our own high school girls to assemble there and shout at us, 'American imperialists, Asia does not want you. Go home!'

"Then they surrounded us and shouted that we put soap in babies' mouths, mistreated little children and even killed some of them. A Red army woman demanded that we be punished, but we must first apologize.

"Then we were embarrassingly searched. Finally, we were made to run the gauntlet of school girls, flanked by soldiers, police, and crowds of people. On bended knees, we were made to beg pardon whilst the school girls were prodded into shaking their fists under the sisters' noses and shouting insulting remarks.

"When poor Sister Theresa Miriam knelt down, they tackled her and pounded her back. There were sympathetic faces among many of the onlookers and some of them cried.

"In a letter from one of the Yuanling priests, who together with the bishop and priests were present at our royal sendoff, he wrote, "I'll bet you sisters had a good laugh just as soon as your bus rounded the hill!'

"But that's just what happened!"

Washington, D. C., nerve center of the free world, is not 100 per cent war-minded, I am happy to inform Pravda.

Last Sunday at a real fancy party at Col. Bob Guggenheim's estate, two nice old dowagers had their heads together in animated conversation, and I caught this much of it:

"I agree with you. She should meet Philo. After all, they're from the same kennel."

PARIS—Besides Senator Richard Nixon knitting his brows over luncheon at the Ritz, and Sugar Ray Robinson driving his shocking pink Cadillac on the Champs Elysee, I've seen General Tony Biddle (he and his Margaret are fixing up the country place they've rented near Versailles) talking at Maxim's to Albert, the owner. . . . Albert says he's coming to U. S. this fall, "for business and some fun." . . . Any American fellow in Paris would have enjoyed watching ex-Chicago Congressman Charles Dewey window-shopping with his wife along the Rue de la Paix. . . . Or world-famous jeweler Pierre Cartier (I had not seen him since a dinner during the war at the late Evelyn Walsh McLean's) taking a spring stroll—to his car at the curb. . . . And waddling past him—a fellow who has enough jewelry to go into competition with Cartier—the corpulent Aga Khan. . . . Not even his daughter-in-law Rita's disturbing "stand" could apparently spoil his pleasures in Paris.

Oh, so many present-day personalities brighten Paris. . . . But as I wrote before, when wandering the ancient streets at dusk, or late at night, you may meet some Paris personalities of the past:

That well-rounded, well-preserved brunette with her amber skin and sweet smile who jumps into a carriage with a rather shabby little man. . . . They have been married by the mayor of Paris in the Rue de Capucines. . . . That carriage and those handsome horses once belonged to the King and Queen. . . . But the little groom (five feet, three inches) and his bride, while far from royal birth themselves) will do much better. . . . Right now the carriage hurries them off for a first honeymoon night to her house . . . She rented it six months ago, hasn't paid rent but Josephine de Beauharnais believes in her luck and never worries about money . . . When they get to her house her little pug dog barks loudly! . . . Resents and bites the newcomer, General Bonaparte.

"I wanted her to put him out," Napoleon would write later of the dog, "but she told me I must accept him for a bedfellow, or seek other quarters. It was take him or leave him—and her."

So far, one of few times in his career the General yielded.

•—•—•

Benjamin Franklin in Paris . . . Not her officially yet, just a tourist, and he goes out to Versailles to stand and watch with the other tourists while Queen Marie Antoinette dines in public . . . Franklin stands with the rest of the gaping crowd, following every forkful . . . He, too, in a few years, will rocket to fame . . . Cheering crowds will follow the envoy from the new Republic, Franklin, through the streets . . . Voltaire will make his one speech in English when he meets the grandson of Franklin . . . Holding out his hands over the little boy's head, Voltaire chokes with emotion, "God and Liberty!"

•—•—•

Into this 14th Century doorway, here in another street, Rue des Archives, passed a winsome, lonely girl from Scotland, Mary Stuart, Queen of France . . . She came often to this mansion to visit her uncles (her mother's brothers), the Duke of Guise and the Cardinal of Lorraine.

•—•—•

Ghosts aplenty has Rue de Saint Honore . . . Like the dainty saleslgirl of a millinery shop, Jeanne Vaubernier, who flirted over the counter with roues of the day . . . Later in her career the pretty thing met Louis XV, became the Countess du Barry, and moved into a small but lavish apartment at Versailles, ruled France through her royal lover, and died on the guillotine only a few blocks away (Place de la Concorde) from the millinery shop . . . A big circle in a few years for a little lady . . .

•—•—•

On the same street a famous young couple, he 16 and she 14, lived after they were married . . . Later he would fight beside General Washington for the cause of liberty, go down in American history — immortal Marquis of Lafayette.

In a cafe up the street, a dandy who had his hair done every day, Robespierre, devil of the Reign of Terror, sat while Marie Antoinette was on trial for her life before the monstrous Revolutionary Tribunal . . . He threw his plate on the ground in fury when one of his stooges came running in to tell him that the people could not believe the absurdly black charges made against the Queen.

Saint Vincent de Paul running a soup kitchen in another street, giving comfort to his beloved poor.

Slipping back farther into the past, you might see Catherine de Medicis arriving in pomp from Italy, an ugly heiress of 14, to marry King Henry the Second . . . Henry loved another lady, but Catherine sent her packing when he was killed in a tournament at the jousting ground right here where you stand in the Tuilleries Gardens . . . Widowed Queen Catherine kept a whole batch of soothsayers and astrologers busy at all times . . . You can still examine the staircase she climbed nightly to the palace roof with the star-gazers to study the heavens.

•—•—•

But, heavenly or not, you do meet such interesting stars in Paris — personalities of past and present!

Know the secret of standing out attractively in a group snapshot? Here are Powers model posing tips!

SECRETS OF CHARM

by JOHN ROBERT POWERS

It takes either an expert director or some expert posing, if you are to look attractive in a photograph with more than two other people! Take a look at those group snaps in your own collection. Chances are that when they were being taken, all the posers thought they looked like movie stars—but in the prints, every body seemed to have too many hands feet and hips.

Think of this ungainly effect the next time you are in a group shot and pose with a little more eclat.

Smart Maneuver

For purposes of instruction, let's say you are in the middle of the group. Naturally you crowd together so that you all get into the picture. But you be the smart one and turn your hips on the diagonal or "away from the camera" as the models say. This not only makes more room for the next fellow, but most importantly, insures that you will be the one in the picture who looks slim. Be careful though, in assuming the diagonal-hip position that you don't turn your shoulders, too. Keep them as square to the camera as possible. This strategy will prevent your having to twist and wrinkle your neck in order to look at the birdie. That would be anything but the effect you want.

Should you link arms with the person on one side of you, place your other arm behind the person on the opposite side. In this way, you get at least one hand out of the camera's eye. And whatever you do, don't let the hand that shows dangle. If you've clasped the arm of the next person, place your hand lightly on his arm. If your fellow poser has beaten you to the draw and clasped your arm first, bring your hand in close to your body at waist level; turn it over so that the palm is up and very little is visible except your relaxed thumb and forefinger.

Foot Position

As for your feet, simply place the heel of one foot into the instep of the other and relax your knees. This stance reduces the girth of your legs by giving you a single legline. Try it in front of your mirror and see for yourself.

While there, also practice this position of your arms: Place either hand behind you at waist level, allowing plenty of separation between your elbow and your body. This is the ticket for gracing the end positions in a group. Next time you are on the end of the line, let it be your graceful arm that gives finesse to the outside edge of the picture!

ON THE LINE

By BOB CONSIDINE

NEW YORK—(INS)—The passing show:

Officials of the U. S. Naval Academy, watching the class of 1951 get itself married at the academy chapel in wholesale lots, are at a loss as to how to discourage the practice.

The Navy is not agin matrimony as an institution but has made an effort during the past two years to persuade the class of '51 to postpone the rush on the chapel until at least the ink on its diplomas was dry. Some first classmen were told that graduation marriages have a divorce rate of 50 per cent.

A year ago, before the "ring dance," traditional time of betrothals, the future admirals were asked to try to control themselves and keep from becoming engaged. The sermon fell on barren soil. For a number of days after the recent graduation, the chapel turned out happy newlyweds on a 30-minute-per-wedding production line, seven hours a day.

Some older salts have suggested that the Navy re-install its old rule against marriage until the graduate is two years out of the academy. But it is not likely that this will gain favor. It led in the past to tremendous conspiracies in the name of surreptitious wedded bliss.

One midshipman with nearly three years of work left before him at the academy, before his graduation day, made an application for use of the chapel for his wedding ceremony. He named a specific day and hour, three years hence. The academy was a little dubious, but went to the trouble of asking him the name of the bride-to-be.

"Haven't met her yet," the indestructible optimist replied.

Think you've had a tough time lately? Then read this, please. It is an account of her expulsion from Communist China by a Sister of Charity named Mary Carita Pendergast, one of nine nuns who recently reached the safety of their convent in New Jersey after years of devoted and unselfish work in China. It goes:

"The day we left Yuanling, the police and Red army women cooked up a demonstration against us at the bus terminal. They forced a crowd of our own high school girls to assemble there and shout at us, 'American imperialists, Asia does not want you. Go home!'

"Then they surrounded us and shouted that we put soap in babies' mouths, mistreated little children and even killed some of them. A Red army woman demanded that we be punished, but we must first apologize.

"Then we were embarrassingly searched. Finally, we were made to run the gauntlet of school girls, flanked by soldiers, police, and crowds of people. On bended knees, we were made to beg pardon whilst the school girls were prodded into shaking their fists under the sisters' noses and shouting insulting remarks.

"When poor Sister Theresa Miriam knelt down, they tackled her and pounded her back. There were sympathetic faces among many of the onlookers and some of them cried.

"In a letter from one of the Yuanling priests, who together with the bishop and priests were present at our royal sendoff, he wrote, "I'll bet you sisters had a good laugh just as soon as your bus rounded the hill!'

"But that's just what happened!"

Washington, D. C., nerve center of the free world, is not 100 per cent war-minded, I am happy to inform Pravda.

Last Sunday at a real fancy party at Col. Bob Guggenheim's estate, two nice old dowagers had their heads together in animated conversation, and I caught this much of it:

"I agree with you. She should meet Philo. After all, they're from the same kennel."

Housing Authority Requests Bids For Building Project

The Cumberland Housing Authority yesterday advertised for bids for the construction of 17 buildings for Low Rent Housing Project Maryland 5-1 located in Mapleside.

The buildings will contain 125 dwelling units or apartments, according to James B. Raines, executive director of the house authority.

The bids will be opened Monday, June 25, at 2 p. m. in the Housing Authority office, Clark Keating Building.

Forms On File

Proposed forms of contract documents including plans and specifications will be on file at the Housing Authority office and at the office of the project architect, S. Russ Minter, 307 South Centre Street.

Copies of the documents may be obtained by depositing $50 with the housing authority.

A certified check or bank draft or a satisfactory bid bond executed by the bidder and acceptable sureties in an amount equal to five per cent of the bid shall be submitted with each bid.

The advertisement says the successful bidder will be required to furnish and pay for satisfactory performance bonds in the amount of 100 per cent of the contract price.

The contractor must abide by minimum wages and salaries as set forth in the specifications.

Bill Still Pending

The announcement also noted that the Housing Authority reserves the right to refuse any and all bids and to waive any formalities in bidding.

The approval of the construction bid on the project must be had by June 30, according to a bill passed by the House of Representatives curtailing public housing.

This means that the Cumberland project has five days to get approval from the Public Housing Administration office in Philadelphia.

A similar bill has been in a Senate finance sub-committee. This group returned the bill to the Finance Committee with the recommendation that 50,000 units, instead of the 5,000 units in the House measure, be allowed to be built annually.

Bus Changes Are Explained By Owner Of Transit Lines

City officials and representatives of the Cumberland Transit Lines discussed yesterday in the Mayor's office the proposed changes in several of the local carrier's schedules.

The conference resulted after C. R. Hoffman, representative of the Western Maryland Labor Unity Conference, appeared at the Monday night council meeting and protested proposed changes.

Guy M. Davis, owner and operator of the business, after the meeting yesterday issued a statement to clarify what he termed "misinformation" which had been circulated among the public concerning changes in several schedules.

He stated that there will be no changes in the base schedules, with the exception of the run to the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company which would be placed on an hourly basis instead of the present half-hour schedule.

Tripper buses will still be used on this run, as at present, to take care of peak loads during the change of shifts.

Davis further explained there would be no curtailment of service to Ridgeley or Wiley Ford, W. Va., as had been rumored. He stated that hourly service to both points would still be maintained.

Tripper services, which was employed to take care of increased demand for public transportation during the war years, will also be eliminated on one run to the South End, he added.

However, the South End will till have 15-minute bus service. Davis said he wished to emphasize that no change has been made in any base schedules, with the exception of the one Kelly-Springfield run mentioned above.

He also pointed out that the Greene Street run and the Patterson Avenue buses will be maintained as usual and that no hardship should be placed on any residents in the general area of the Kelly plant because of the anticipated revision of the schedule of that run. Davis said the contemplated changes are to become effective June 16.

At the council meeting Monday, Hoffman declared that proposed changes would result in curtailment in feeder service to the city.

Hoffman said the change would involve 53 hours less service, but added that the total included 20 hours school bus time which will be cut when school is over.

Truman Plans Trip

WASHINGTON, June 6 (AP) — President Truman will fly to Tennessee June 25 for the dedication of an Air Force center at Tullahoma.

Western Maryland Must Continue Train

The Western Maryland Railway was denied authority to discontinue one of its Elkins-Cumberland passenger trains.

The company had asked the West Virginia Public Service Commission approval of such discontinuances between Ridgeley, Mineral County, and Elkins. Train No. 1 leaves Cumberland at 7:01 a. m. arriving at Elkins at 11 a. m. Train No. 4 departs from Elkins at 1:55 p. m. and reaches Cumberland at 5:55 p. m.

The commission order said that although it appeared that passenger business on the runs is being furnished "at a very substantial loss," the overall business, including mail and express is profitable.

Testimony disclosed that 19 of 33 stations in West Virginia served by Trains Nos. 1 and 4 do not have any other kind of public transportation because of the conditions of highways in some and a complete lack of roads in others.

There are about 216 bones in a horse's skeleton, excluding teeth.

North Mechanic Street To Be Opened In Two Weeks

North Mechanic Street will be open to through traffic in about two weeks, a spokesman for the Thomas Earle and Son Company, sub-contractors on the flood conduit reported yesterday.

The firm made its final pour of concrete on the Mechanic street portion of the conduit yesterday. This means the conduit is complete from Wills Creek to the intersection of Frederick Street.

Walter Godsey, superintendent, said work remaining is the pouring of a final slap and backfilling, the construction of two brick manholes at the intersection of Mechanic and Frederick streets and the completion of telephone cable splicing.

This work, Godsey predicted, should not take over two or three weeks. The C. and P. Telephone Company has been working seven days a week splicing cables at the Bedford Street-Mechanic Street intersection.

Godsey said his firm is anxious to complete North Mechanic Street portion of the Frederick Street drain in order that Liberty Street can be crossed with the ditch.

Housing Authority Requests Bids For Building Project

The Cumberland Housing Authority yesterday advertised for bids for the construction of 17 buildings for Low Rent Housing Project Maryland 5-1 located in Mapleside.

The buildings will contain 125 dwelling units or apartments, according to James B. Raines, executive director of the house authority.

The bids will be opened Monday, June 25, at 2 p. m. in the Housing Authority office, Clark Keating Building.

Forms On File

Proposed forms of contract documents including plans and specifications will be on file at the Housing Authority office and at the office of the project architect, S. Russ Minter, 307 South Centre Street.

Copies of the documents may be obtained by depositing $50 with the housing authority.

A certified check or bank draft or a satisfactory bid bond executed by the bidder and acceptable sureties in an amount equal to five per cent of the bid shall be submitted with each bid.

The advertisement says the successful bidder will be required to furnish and pay for satisfactory performance bonds in the amount of 100 per cent of the contract price.

The contractor must abide by minimum wages and salaries as set forth in the specifications.

Bill Still Pending

The announcement also noted that the Housing Authority reserves the right to refuse any and all bids and to waive any formalities in bidding.

The approval of the construction bid on the project must be had by June 30, according to a bill passed by the House of Representatives curtailing public housing.

This means that the Cumberland project has five days to get approval from the Public Housing Administration office in Philadelphia.

A similar bill has been in a Senate finance sub-committee. This group returned the bill to the Finance Committee with the recommendation that 50,000 units, instead of the 5,000 units in the House measure, be allowed to be built annually.

North Mechanic Street To Be Opened In Two Weeks

North Mechanic Street will be open to through traffic in about two weeks, a spokesman for the Thomas Earle and Son Company, sub-contractors on the flood conduit reported yesterday.

The firm made its final pour of concrete on the Mechanic street portion of the conduit yesterday. This means the conduit is complete from Wills Creek to the intersection of Frederick Street.

Walter Godsey, superintendent, said work remaining is the pouring of a final slap and backfilling, the construction of two brick manholes at the intersection of Mechanic and Frederick streets and the completion of telephone cable splicing.

This work, Godsey predicted, should not take over two or three weeks. The C. and P. Telephone Company has been working seven days a week splicing cables at the Bedford Street-Mechanic Street intersection.

Godsey said his firm is anxious to complete North Mechanic Street portion of the Frederick Street drain in order that Liberty Street can be crossed with the ditch.

Bus Changes Are Explained By Owner Of Transit Lines

City officials and representatives of the Cumberland Transit Lines discussed yesterday in the Mayor's office the proposed changes in several of the local carrier's schedules.

The conference resulted after C. R. Hoffman, representative of the Western Maryland Labor Unity Conference, appeared at the Monday night council meeting and protested proposed changes.

Guy M. Davis, owner and operator of the business, after the meeting yesterday issued a statement to clarify what he termed "misinformation" which had been circulated among the public concerning changes in several schedules.

He stated that there will be no changes in the base schedules, with the exception of the run to the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company which would be placed on an hourly basis instead of the present half-hour schedule.

Tripper buses will still be used on this run, as at present, to take care of peak loads during the change of shifts.

Davis further explained there would be no curtailment of service to Ridgeley or Wiley Ford, W. Va., as had been rumored. He stated that hourly service to both points would still be maintained.

Tripper services, which was employed to take care of increased demand for public transportation during the war years, will also be eliminated on one run to the South End, he added.

However, the South End will till have 15-minute bus service. Davis said he wished to emphasize that no change has been made in any base schedules, with the exception of the one Kelly-Springfield run mentioned above.

He also pointed out that the Greene Street run and the Patterson Avenue buses will be maintained as usual and that no hardship should be placed on any residents in the general area of the Kelly plant because of the anticipated revision of the schedule of that run. Davis said the contemplated changes are to become effective June 16.

At the council meeting Monday, Hoffman declared that proposed changes would result in curtailment in feeder service to the city.

Hoffman said the change would involve 53 hours less service, but added that the total included 20 hours school bus time which will be cut when school is over.

Western Maryland Must Continue Train

The Western Maryland Railway was denied authority to discontinue one of its Elkins-Cumberland passenger trains.

The company had asked the West Virginia Public Service Commission approval of such discontinuances between Ridgeley, Mineral County, and Elkins. Train No. 1 leaves Cumberland at 7:01 a. m. arriving at Elkins at 11 a. m. Train No. 4 departs from Elkins at 1:55 p. m. and reaches Cumberland at 5:55 p. m.

The commission order said that although it appeared that passenger business on the runs is being furnished "at a very substantial loss," the overall business, including mail and express is profitable.

Testimony disclosed that 19 of 33 stations in West Virginia served by Trains Nos. 1 and 4 do not have any other kind of public transportation because of the conditions of highways in some and a complete lack of roads in others.

Residents of Maryland have so far contributed $897,550.50 to the total of 100 million dollars worth of food and textile packages which have been distributed by CARE among the needy of a score of overseas countries during the past five years.

Bolt And Forge To Help In Building Of B&O Cars

The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad has authorized the building of 1,000 box cars in the company's own shops, according to an announcement made in Baltimore yesterday by President Roy B. White.

It is not expected that any of the actual construction of the cars will be done in Cumberland or on the Cumberland Division, but The Cumberland Evening Times learned that much of the manufacture and processing of equipment of the cars will be handled at the Bolt and Forge shops here.

A. K. Galloway, general superintendent of motive power and equipment, said in Baltimore yesterday morning that a large portion of equipment construction and processing will definitely be done in the local Balt and Forge shops.

The cars will be of all steel construction and of 50-ton capacity. It is estimated that materials will be on hand by April 1 of next year so that the work can go ahead at that time. This will insure the earliest possible delivery of the cars.

The Baltimore and Ohio has been engaged during the last year on an exceptionally heavy car repair program. It is planned to have the car building forces continue on this work with the expectation that many of them can be assigned to the new car construction work next year.

Prior to the 1883 adoption of Standard Time, there were about 100 different times in use by American railroads.

Egyptian-Soviet Contact Charged

CAIRO, Egypt, June 6 (AP) — Allegations that Prime Minister Mustapha El Nahas Pasha and members of his party have been in secret contact with Soviet authorities are being investigated by Egypt's prosecutor general at the request of the Prime Minister himself.

The inquiry was launched May 28, but publication of any reports in connection with it had been banned until tonight.

The allegations by opponents of the Nahas Pasha government are based on a letter allegedly written by the Prime Minister and Ibrahim Farag Pasha, minister for rural affairs, to the Russian minister to Egypt, Semen Pavlovich Kozyrev.

In the letter, the Egyptian leaders are alleged to have made overtures to the Soviet Union because Britain appears unprepared to satisfy Egyptian aspirations for union of Egypt and the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan and withdrawal of British forces from the Suez Canal Zone.

Nahas Pasha and other leaders of the Wafdist Party have asserted the letter was a forgery.

A highly placed member of the Wafdist Party said tonight that Brig. Hagrassi Bey, a former officer in the Egyptian army, and two employes of the Soviet legation were under arrest as a result of the investigation. The latter are Egyptians, he said.

Capital Gains Tax Hike Voted By House Group

WASHINGTON, June 6 (AP)—Off to a slow start on final revision of a $7,100,000,000 tax bill, the House Ways and Means Committee voted today to raise the capital gains tax rate to 28½ per cent for corporations as well as individuals. The rate now is 25 per cent for both classes of taxpayers.

In its only other decision of the day, the committee rejected a motion to hold the overall ceiling on corporate taxes at the present level of 62 per cent. The committee voted two weeks ago to let the government take up to 70 per cent of a corporation's net earnings in all forms of taxes—normal, surtax and excess profits tax. That vote is still subject to final ratification.

Milton Berle To Stage 3rd Annual "Telethon"

NEW YORK, June 6 (AP)—Milton Berle will stage his third annual NBC television appeal for pledges for the Damon Runyon Memorial Fund next Saturday, NBC said today.

The "Telethon" will begin at 11 a. m. (EST) and continue until 9 a. m. (EST) Sunday. To date 43 stations are scheduled to carry the program, during which Berle will welcome persons prominent in many fields and stars of television, radio, stage and screen.

ment were agreed last spring a North Korean attack was possible.

"But they were all in agreement," he added, "that its launching in the summer of 1950 did not appear imminent."

Acheson gave this report to the Senate Armed Services and Foreign Relations Committees studying United States Far East policy and the firing of Gen. MacArthur.

He denied there was any appeasement involved in a U. S.-backed peace proposal to Red China last January — but Sen. George (D-Ga) said the State Department blundered into it and then "prayed" its way out.

Critics of this U. N. peace proposal contend that the conditions offered to the Communists risked the possible entry of Red China into the United Nations and also the loss of Formosa.

NINE KILLED IN CRASH OF GIANT PLANE—Nine airmen died near San Antonio, Tex., yesterday when a huge C-97 Stratofreighter crashed shortly after taking off on a training flight from Kelly Air Force Base. One civilian was burned slightly while a filling station and a tavern were set on fire.

Range Of Price War Widened

NEW YORK, June 6 (AP)—Warring department stores slashed price tags on more merchandise today to pump new vigor into their seven-day battle of bargains.

The mad rush of customers snapping up former fixed-price items at close to dealer cost appeared to be just about over in New York.

Some stores said shopping crowds still were above normal. But they were orderly and easily handled by the larger crews of sales clerks on duty.

Meanwhile, price-cutting spread to new areas of the country as more retail merchants decided to take advantage of a United States Supreme Court ruling that they need not observe manufacturers' fixed prices unless they had signed "fair trade" agreements.

Some Louisville and Lexington, Kentucky, department stores joined the assault on fixed prices, dropping tags 10 to 30 per cent on about 1,000 items.

Other price-cutting areas ranged from Claremont, N. H., and Atlanta, Ga., to Sitka, Alaska and San Francisco.

Acheson Discounts Lattimore's Influence

WASHINGTON, June 6 (AP) — Secretary of State Acheson said today that in his opinion Owen Lattimore had no influence on postwar U. S. foreign policy.

Sen. Wiley (R-Wis) questioned Acheson about Lattimore at the Senate inquiry into the dismissal of Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

Lattimore, Johns Hopkins University professor, was a central figure last year in charges by Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis) that Communists and fellow travelers had infiltrated the State Department.

McCarthy at one point accused Lattimore of being Russia's top spy in this country and said he was the principal architect of U. S. policy toward the Far East. Lattimore denied the charges.

Jail Wall's Collapse Reported By Trusty

ANNAPOLIS, Md., June 6 (AP)—The phone rang at police headquarters last night.

"Rear wall at the county jail fell down," said the caller.

It had, too. A 20-foot section of the cinder block wall running behind the jail simply crumbled. Digging of a cellar on adjoining property apparently weakened the foundation.

Police thanked the caller—Blaine Decker, an inmate and still chief trusty.

Abandoned Bomber Case In Judge's Hands

BALTIMORE, June 6 (AP) — An "unprecedented" case, involving manslaughter charges against an Air Force pilot whose abandoned plane crashed and killed three persons, was in the hands of a federal judge today.

Capt. Paul V. Chapman was indicted for manslaughter by a Prince Georges County grand jury after he bailed out of a B-25 bomber over Andrews Air Force Base April 8. The plane he abandoned spiraled down, struck a dwelling, and killed a man and two small girls.

The case was heard by Federal District Judge W. Calvin Chesnut without a jury after it was transferred to federal court. A federal statute permits such a transfer when a federal official is involved.

Jail Cell Block Home To Mother, 5 Children

LEAVENWORTH, Kas., June 6 (AP)—A cell block in the county jail was home today for a mother and five of her seven children evicted for non-payment of rent on their three-room home.

The husband, a World War II Navy veteran recalled to active duty in March, is in the Korean war zone.

Sheriff Herb Nye, who carried out the eviction order yesterday, did not make public the woman's name.

The sheriff said he stalled as long as he could before serving the order to give county welfare officials an opportunity to locate lodgings for the family. When that didn't work, he said, he opened the jail to the mother and children, started the furnace to provide heat and ordered extra milk deliveries.

Reds Reportedly Mass Near Iran

TEHRAN, Iran, June 6 (AP) — A high Iranian army source said tonight an unprecedented number of Russian troops, tanks, artillery and planes were engaged in maneuvers on both the eastern and western sides of the Caspian Sea close to Iran's northern frontier.

An important western diplomat declared, however, that latest intelligence reports showed only the usual border garrison of about 60,000 Russian troops in the area. He said the Iranian report could be true, but it was not probable.

The report of troop concentrations, which first appeared in the newspaper Keyhan, came as the crisis between Britain and Iran over oil nationalization was at its peak.

If true, it could be a part of a Soviet war of nerves, or it could simply be an effort to put a brake on any British impulse to act drastically in case projected oil negotiations do not go smoothly.

Keyhan said troops "far in excess of the normal border guard" had been engaged in "unusual Russian activities" on both sides of the Caspian since mid-April. The newspaper also spokes of "concentrations of unlimited Soviet forces" across the border.

"The Authority on Authorities"

DON'T BE A LAZY MAN

OPENING leads are pretty well catalogued in the mind of the average player because of tables he has read in various good books. Against a suit contract, for instance, first choice is given as the king from an ace-king combination and second choice the king from a king-queen-jack holding. But those are intended to be used only when there is no special guidance from the bidding to indicate that something else may be preferable. Don't be a lazy man who slavishly follows such tables without first considering whether there may or may not be some more promising course.

♠ K Q J 9 7 ♥ J 8 4 ♦ A 8 ♣ K 7 3	N W E S	♠ 10 8 6 5 4 ♥ Q 10 6 2 ♦ 3 2 ♣ 4 2
	♠ A ♥ A 9 3 ♦ J 9 5 ♣ A Q J 8 6 5

(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
1 ♣	1 ♠	2 ♦	2 ♠

South could have done better by bidding only 4-Clubs on his second turn as an almost positive force. North then would have rebid diamonds, whereupon South should have taken it to 5-Diamond. Either contract could have been beaten, however, by strong defense. But the 5-Clubs proved safe against the kind of action West took.

Liking the looks of his spade suit, West opened the K, which the A won. South reckoned that West probably had the club K as part of his overcalling strength, so eschewed the finesse and laid down the A, following with the Q to the K. West shifted now to his heart 4 to whack at that side entry for the diamonds. South won with the A and led the diamond J. West scored the A and returned a second heart, which the K won. Clubs and diamonds were run then to complete the contract.

If West had thought a bit before his opening lead, he would have reasoned that, against opponents who could bid that strongly, East had a lot of spades for his raise of that suit. Its lead therefore was hopeless. The sole chance then would have been to develop a trick in hearts. With two entries, one in each minor, West was practically sure of getting two more chances to lead hearts, so that if his partner had even the Q, a trick might be scored there. You will notice that any heart lead would have doomed the contract, building the setting trick there.

New York Loses Chance To Gain

Giants Drop 5 To 4 Tilt To Cincinnati

NEW YORK, June 6 (AP) — The New York Giants were all set to climb into second place in the National League again today, but were forced to cancel their reservations at the last minute when the Cincinnati Reds fell on Southpaw Frontia Kennedy for three runs in the top of the ninth and carried off the decision, 5 to 4.

Things looked all right for Durocher's Dandies as Kennedy went to the ninth owning a gaudy two-hitter and a 4-2 edge. News already had come in of the Cardinals' loss to Brooklyn, and the Giants needed only three more outs to take over the runner-up spot.

Before they got them the Redlegs had banged out four hits, Al Dark had made a throwing error and three runs were across. Box:

Horse Trainer Is Awarded $15,000 Damages In Alpine Boy Case Suit

Hatfield Incorrectly Identified By Paper

BALTIMORE, June 6 —(AP)— A superior court jury yesterday awarded John B. Hatfield, horse racing trainer, $15,000 damages in a libel suit against the Hearst Consolidated Publications, Inc., publishers of the Baltimore News-Post, and Rodger H. Pippen, its sports editor.

The jury deliberated two and one-half hours. It awarded Hatfield $5,000 compensatory damages against the joint defendants and $10,000 punitive damages, $9,500 against the publishing company and $500 against the sports editor.

Hatfield asked $150,000 damages. His complaint was based on newspaper articles in connection with the horse Alpine Boy, which bolted in 1948 and caused the death of Jockey Benny Leggett at the Cumberland race track.

Hatfield asserted he had not been trainer of the horse since 1947 and that the newspaper articles concerning the fatality identified him incorrectly as the trainer.

The owner of Alpine Boy, Dr. A. J. Gross, filed suit also, but a settlement was reached out of court.

Kell's Catch Saves Detroit

Tiger Rally Trips Boston Sox, 6-4

DETROIT, June 6 (AP) — Third baseman George Kell's diving catch of a bases loaded line drive in the ninth inning stopped a Boston Red Sox rally and gave the Detroit Tigers a 6-4 win today.

The Red Sox, with the help of Vern Stephens' seventh home run of the year, had scored three runs and were in a position to tie up the game on a clean single. But with two out Kell grabbed Lou Boudreau's liner as it soared past third base.

Lefthander Bob Cain gave up only six hits in eight innings and rapped out three himself to win his second game for Detroit against two losses.

Harry Taylor suffered his fourth loss against four wins when Dick Kryhoski broke up a one-to-one pitcher's duel in the eighth with a bases loaded double that scored two runs. Three more hits produced three more runs. Box:

New York Loses Chance To Gain

Giants Drop 5 To 4 Tilt To Cincinnati

NEW YORK, June 6 (AP) — The New York Giants were all set to climb into second place in the National League again today, but were forced to cancel their reservations at the last minute when the Cincinnati Reds fell on Southpaw Frontia Kennedy for three runs in the top of the ninth and carried off the decision, 5 to 4.

Things looked all right for Durocher's Dandies as Kennedy went to the ninth owning a gaudy two-hitter and a 4-2 edge. News already had come in of the Cardinals' loss to Brooklyn, and the Giants needed only three more outs to take over the runner-up spot.

Before they got them the Redlegs had banged out four hits, Al Dark had made a throwing error and three runs were across. Box:

Horse Trainer Is Awarded $15,000 Damages In Alpine Boy Case Suit

Hatfield Incorrectly Identified By Paper

BALTIMORE, June 6 —(AP)— A superior court jury yesterday awarded John B. Hatfield, horse racing trainer, $15,000 damages in a libel suit against the Hearst Consolidated Publications, Inc., publishers of the Baltimore News-Post, and Rodger H. Pippen, its sports editor.

The jury deliberated two and one-half hours. It awarded Hatfield $5,000 compensatory damages against the joint defendants and $10,000 punitive damages, $9,500 against the publishing company and $500 against the sports editor.

Hatfield asked $150,000 damages. His complaint was based on newspaper articles in connection with the horse Alpine Boy, which bolted in 1948 and caused the death of Jockey Benny Leggett at the Cumberland race track.

Hatfield asserted he had not been trainer of the horse since 1947 and that the newspaper articles concerning the fatality identified him incorrectly as the trainer.

The owner of Alpine Boy, Dr. A. J. Gross, filed suit also, but a settlement was reached out of court.

Kell's Catch Saves Detroit

Tiger Rally Trips Boston Sox, 6-4

DETROIT, June 6 (AP) — Third baseman George Kell's diving catch of a bases loaded line drive in the ninth inning stopped a Boston Red Sox rally and gave the Detroit Tigers a 6-4 win today.

The Red Sox, with the help of Vern Stephens' seventh home run of the year, had scored three runs and were in a position to tie up the game on a clean single. But with two out Kell grabbed Lou Boudreau's liner as it soared past third base.

Lefthander Bob Cain gave up only six hits in eight innings and rapped out three himself to win his second game for Detroit against two losses.

Harry Taylor suffered his fourth loss against four wins when Dick Kryhoski broke up a one-to-one pitcher's duel in the eighth with a bases loaded double that scored two runs. Three more hits produced three more runs. Box:

KEEPING UP WITH HOLLYWOOD

By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, June 6—(INS)—Flame-haired Zsa Zsa Gabor, one of the famed Gabor sisters and the wife of George Sanders, has been signed by Hugo Haas to make a picture.

The story is a very dramatic one called "Thy Neighbor's Wife." In it the red-haired beauty plays the young wife of a judge—Hugo Haas. It's a bad marriage, and while she's out with her lover, his uncle is killed and the boy is blamed for the murder.

The boy cannot give an alibi. Later it's proved the uncle was killed by an insane man. The judge who tries the case is the wronged husband, and, oh well, there's a lot more to it—another murder and heavy drama. Haas doesn't make conventional pictures ever.

Here's news for Gary Merrill. When he returns from Europe with Bette Davis in August he'll be told to get ready for a location trip to Canada.

Gary is to co-star with Debra Paget in "Mounted Patrol," a story of the Mounted Police who rescue a white girl from Indians. Yep, Debra, who made her debut as an Indian girl in "Broken Arrow," once again becomes a child of the Indians—she is raised by them and believes she is a redskin.

Gary Merrill

No actor in Hollywood has done as much traveling in as short a time as Gary. He made "Decision At Dawn" in Munich, "Another Man's Poison" in London with Bette, "Frogmen' in Florida, and now its Canada with Sam Engel as production head.

It's nothing new in Hollywood these days for a newcomer to get a big break (it's becoming a habit). But, it's certainly something for a boy who has never played on stage or screen to come up with the lead opposite Linda Darnell in "Saturday Island."

The good-looker to whom this dizzying event has happened is Tab Hunter—and Mr. Typesetter, don't change that spelling. Henry Willson, who discovered him, couldn't think of a professional name for his find so they just "tabbed" him Tab.

Henry reports he saw Tab last year, visiting backstage at the Icecapades, and thought he had movie possibilities. Since then he has been grooming him for this break.

Chatter in Hollywood:

Whatever happened to cause Yvonne De Carlo to get so annoyed with Steve Cochran that she ran out of the party Joy and Bill Orr gave and went home alone?

Someone ventured the guess that since the Earl of Lanesborough gave Yvonne such a rush in England, she doesn't find an American actor as good company as she formerly did.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Joe DiMaggio, Jr., goes along on tour with his famous dad. His mother goes along and Joe and Dorothy will remarry at that time. They have not already remarried as reported.

Marcella Howard, widow of Charles (Seabiscuit) Howard, goes to Honolulu to join her sister, Mrs. George Vanderbilt, and Mrs. Clark Gable. Marcella sails on the Lurline.

Jan Sterling and Paul Douglas had their farewell dinner at the Sportsmen's Lodge. Next day Paul planed out for Paris and then on to Rome. Jan joins him in Rome.

Spencer Tracy promised his daughter, Suzy, that he'll bring her a bag, scarf or belt from every country he visits while he's in Europe, and Suzy will hold him to that promise.

Naomi Jaffe, attractive daughter of Sam Jaffe, and her husband, Richard Carroll, have said goodbye to marriage.

Audie Murphy's bride has a bad case of poison ivy, picked up when she went on location with Audie.

Jack Benny and his attractive daughter, Joanie, were among those who applauded Chester Morris at the opening of "Detective Story" at the Ivar Theatre. Virginia Fields was there with Willard Parker.

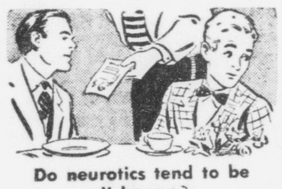
That's all today. See you tomorrow!

Mirror Of Your Mind

By LAWRENCE GOULD, Consulting Psychologist

Should drunkards be jailed?

Answer: No, says the recent report of its Liquor Research Commission to the Maine State Legislature. Forty percent or more of alcoholics suffer from diet deficiency due to substituting liquor for food and jail obviously does not help this. Again, being sent to jail arouses feelings of shame or resentment, both of which increase the urge to drink in order to escape them. The intoxicated person who commits a crime presents a different problem, but the average "compulsive drunkard" is a mentally and physically sick person and should be treated as such—preferably through clinics set up for the purpose.



Do neurotics tend to be dishonest?

Answer: Yes, says Dr. Edmund Bergler in his recent book, "Money and Emotional Conflicts." By no means every neurotic dodges paying his bills—some are even in exaggerated haste to do so. But the average neurotic has an "elastic fraud corner" in his mind which may make him act "perculiarly" in money matters, at least part of the time. (He may always let somebody else "pick up the check," for instance.) This is because he feels that as the victim of so much injustice as he believes he has suffered, he is "an exception" to the general rules and should ha e less ex- of him than is required of others.

Do social conditions make delinquents?

Answer: To some real degree, yes, writes Dr. E. Jouhy in Entrance. The essential character of children does not vary greatly from one generation to another, so that when there is a large and sudden increase in delinquency, we can only attribute it to social conditions that have given children less chance to develop normally. (Lack of opportunities for healthy play in a large city is one instance of this.) Dr. Jouhy is one of those who believe that "aggresivity" is not a natural instinct but a symptom of the frustration of a child's emotional needs by the environment in which he grows up.

KEEPING UP WITH HOLLYWOOD

By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, June 6—(INS)—Flame-haired Zsa Zsa Gabor, one of the famed Gabor sisters and the wife of George Sanders, has been signed by Hugo Haas to make a picture.

The story is a very dramatic one called "Thy Neighbor's Wife." In it the red-haired beauty plays the young wife of a judge—Hugo Haas. It's a bad marriage, and while she's out with her lover, his uncle is killed and the boy is blamed for the murder.

The boy cannot give an alibi. Later it's proved the uncle was killed by an insane man. The judge who tries the case is the wronged husband, and, oh well, there's a lot more to it—another murder and heavy drama. Haas doesn't make conventional pictures ever.

Here's news for Gary Merrill. When he returns from Europe with Bette Davis in August he'll be told to get ready for a location trip to Canada.

Gary is to co-star with Debra Paget in "Mounted Patrol," a story of the Mounted Police who rescue a white girl from Indians. Yep, Debra, who made her debut as an Indian girl in "Broken Arrow," once again becomes a child of the Indians—she is raised by them and believes she is a redskin.

Gary Merrill

No actor in Hollywood has done as much traveling in as short a time as Gary. He made "Decision At Dawn" in Munich, "Another Man's Poison" in London with Bette, "Frogmen' in Florida, and now its Canada with Sam Engel as production head.

It's nothing new in Hollywood these days for a newcomer to get a big break (it's becoming a habit). But, it's certainly something for a boy who has never played on stage or screen to come up with the lead opposite Linda Darnell in "Saturday Island."

The good-looker to whom this dizzying event has happened is Tab Hunter—and Mr. Typesetter, don't change that spelling. Henry Willson, who discovered him, couldn't think of a professional name for his find so they just "tabbed" him Tab.

Henry reports he saw Tab last year, visiting backstage at the Icecapades, and thought he had movie possibilities. Since then he has been grooming him for this break.

Chatter in Hollywood:

Whatever happened to cause Yvonne De Carlo to get so annoyed with Steve Cochran that she ran out of the party Joy and Bill Orr gave and went home alone?

Someone ventured the guess that since the Earl of Lanesborough gave Yvonne such a rush in England, she doesn't find an American actor as good company as she formerly did.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Joe DiMaggio, Jr., goes along on tour with his famous dad. His mother goes along and Joe and Dorothy will remarry at that time. They have not already remarried as reported.

Marcella Howard, widow of Charles (Seabiscuit) Howard, goes to Honolulu to join her sister, Mrs. George Vanderbilt, and Mrs. Clark Gable. Marcella sails on the Lurline.

Jan Sterling and Paul Douglas had their farewell dinner at the Sportsmen's Lodge. Next day Paul planed out for Paris and then on to Rome. Jan joins him in Rome.

Spencer Tracy promised his daughter, Suzy, that he'll bring her a bag, scarf or belt from every country he visits while he's in Europe, and Suzy will hold him to that promise.

Naomi Jaffe, attractive daughter of Sam Jaffe, and her husband, Richard Carroll, have said goodbye to marriage.

Audie Murphy's bride has a bad case of poison ivy, picked up when she went on location with Audie.

Jack Benny and his attractive daughter, Joanie, were among those who applauded Chester Morris at the opening of "Detective Story" at the Ivar Theatre. Virginia Fields was there with Willard Parker.

That's all today. See you tomorrow!

Mirror Of Your Mind

By LAWRENCE GOULD, Consulting Psychologist

Should drunkards be jailed?

Answer: No, says the recent report of its Liquor Research Commission to the Maine State Legislature. Forty percent or more of alcoholics suffer from diet deficiency due to substituting liquor for food and jail obviously does not help this. Again, being sent to jail arouses feelings of shame or resentment, both of which increase the urge to drink in order to escape them. The intoxicated person who commits a crime presents a different problem, but the average "compulsive drunkard" is a mentally and physically sick person and should be treated as such—preferably through clinics set up for the purpose.

Do neurotics tend to be dishonest?

Answer: Yes, says Dr. Edmund Bergler in his recent book, "Money and Emotional Conflicts." By no means every neurotic dodges paying his bills—some are even in exaggerated haste to do so. But the average neurotic has an "elastic fraud corner" in his mind which may make him act "perculiarly" in money matters, at least part of the time. (He may always let somebody else "pick up the check," for instance.) This is because he feels that as the victim of so much injustice as he believes he has suffered, he is "an exception" to the general rules and should have less exacted of him than is required of others.

Do social conditions make delinquents?

Answer: To some real degree, yes, writes Dr. E. Jouhy in Enfrance. The essential character of children does not vary greatly from one generation to another, so that when there is a large and sudden increase in delinquency, we can only attribute it to social conditions that have given children less chance to develop normally. (Lack of opportunities for healthy play in a large city is one instance of this.) Dr. Jouhy is one of those who believe that "aggresivity" is not a natural instinct but a symptom of the frustration of a child's emotional needs by the environment in which he grows up.

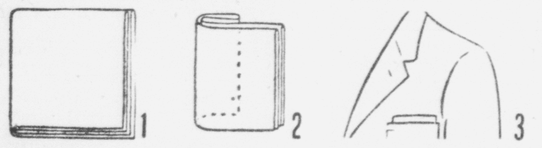
Summer Favorite Returns

FASHION: There's a strong trend again this year to the white and off-white sport jacket, as worn by stage and motion-picture actor Jeffrey Lynn (left). They're good for both city and country wear.

Dress Tips: If you're stuck without a shoe horn, use the end of a tie. The foot slides in and the tie slides out. . . . Peter Donald claims that ginger ale will remove mustard that drops from your hot dog on your clothes. What will take the ginger ale out?

Handyman: If the lid or top of a jar is balky, try grasping it with a piece of coarse sandpaper and twisting. Usually works. . . . When cleaning the inside of your car with fluids or solvents, do it outdoors—and with the car doors open.

Pocket Handkerchief: Many people have asked how the handkerchief is placed in the breast pocket to get that ever-more popular squared-off look. The simplest method is: 1. Open handkerchief; 2. fold edges under; 3 place in pocket with tucked edges pushed down out of sight.



Gadgets: A new pocket-sized foreign language translator is called Trans-L'Aider. Set indicator to English phrase—and presto, you have the translation! . . . With Par-Pal golf tool you can do everything but hit the ball! It's a shoe-spike wrench, yardage scale, pencil sharpener, grip roughener, etc.

Healthful Hint: When vacationing near water, protect your camera by keeping it in a plastic food bag. Moisture and sand harm the shutter mechanism.

Four Octaves

Odd Notes: Recommended Reading: Dave Horwich's "How to Stop Snoring." They say it works. . . . Make a bet Mary Mayo (right), with range of four octaves, will be one of the year's top singers. . . . Did you know that there's a "Bachelors Protective Association," with membership cards, publication etc.? . . . This week's "Pass the Cigars" to Barney Ross who, to our knowledge, has never turned down a request to lend his name, presence and active efforts to a worthy cause. He's still a champ for charity.

Conscience Wins Year Long Battle

BELLEVILLE, Ill. (AP)—For $1.03, a Belleville store's customer couldn't stand to have it on her conscience that she got too much change.

She had apparently worried about it a year however before sending the $1 and the three cents sales tax to the store. She wrote that a clerk had given her $1.03 too much change. She signed her name and address too.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

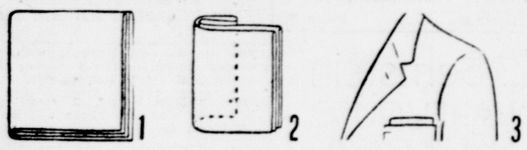
Summer Favorite Returns

FASHION: There's a strong trend again this year to the white and off-white sport jacket, as worn by stage and motion-picture actor Jeffrey Lynn (left). They're good for both city and country wear.

Dress Tips: If you're stuck without a shoe horn, use the end of a tie. The foot slides in and the tie slides out. . . . Peter Donald claims that ginger ale will remove mustard that drops from your hot dog on your clothes. What will take the ginger ale out?

Handyman: If the lid or top of a jar is balky, try grasping it with a piece of coarse sandpaper and twisting. Usually works. . . . When cleaning the inside of your car with fluids or solvents, do it outdoors—and with the car doors open.

Pocket Handkerchief: Many people have asked how the handkerchief is placed in the breast pocket to get that ever-more popular squared-off look. The simplest method is: 1. Open handkerchief; 2. fold edges under; 3 place in pocket with tucked edges pushed down out of sight.



Gadgets: A new pocket-sized foreign language translator is called Trans-L'Aider. Set indicator to English phrase—and presto, you have the translation! . . . With Par-Pal golf tool you can do everything but hit the ball! It's a shoe-spike wrench, yardage scale, pencil sharpener, grip roughener, etc.

Healthful Hint: When vacationing near water, protect your camera by keeping it in a plastic food bag. Moisture and sand harm the shutter mechanism.

Four Octaves

Odd Notes: Recommended Reading: Dave Horwich's "How to Stop Snoring." They say it works. . . . Make a bet Mary Mayo (right), with range of four octaves, will be one of the year's top singers. . . . Did you know that there's a "Bachelors Protective Association," with membership cards, publication etc.? . . . This week's "Pass the Cigars" to Barney Ross who, to our knowledge, has never turned down a request to lend his name, presence and active efforts to a worthy cause. He's still a champ for charity.

Conscience Wins Year Long Battle

BELLEVILLE, Ill. (AP)—For $1.03, a Belleville store's customer couldn't stand to have it on her conscience that she got too much change.

She had apparently worried about it a year however before sending the $1 and the three cents sales tax to the store. She wrote that a clerk had given her $1.03 too much change. She signed her name and address too.

Yesterday's Answer

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

A Cryptogram Quotation

N B N V! M S D C N J D V G C G L A X, V G Q D N L M F T L B—Q C J G A.

Card Of Thanks

We take this means of publicly expressing sincere thanks to those of our friends and neighbors who were so sympathetic and helpful during the illness and following the death of our beloved wife and mother, Mrs. George W. Gay, Bayard, W. Va. We are also grateful to Rev. Swartz of the United Brethren Church, to those who loaned motor cars for the funeral, those who sent floral tributes and to all others who in any manner rendered assistance.

HUSBAND & CHILDREN

In Memoriam

In loving memory of our dear son and brother, Slavko Nickolas Krnaya, who passed away 10 years ago, June 7, 1941.
When evening shades are falling,
And we are sitting all alone,
In our hearts there comes a longing,
If you only could come home.
Oft and oft our thoughts do wander,
To your grave so far away.
Where we laid you dearest Slavko,
Ten years ago today.
Sadly missed by his FATHER, MOTHER, SISTER & BROTHER.

Card Of Thanks

We take this means of publicly expressing sincere thanks to those of our friends and neighbors who were so sympathetic and helpful during the illness and following the death of our beloved wife and mother, Mrs. George W. Gay, Bayard, W. Va. We are also grateful to Rev. Swartz of the United Brethren Church, to those who loaned motor cars for the funeral, those who sent floral tributes and to all others who in any manner rendered assistance.

HUSBAND & CHILDREN

In Memoriam

In loving memory of our dear son and brother, Slavko Nickolas Krnaya, who passed away 10 years ago, June 7, 1941.
When evening shades are falling,
And we are sitting all alone,
In our hearts there comes a longing,
If you only could come home.
Oft and oft our thoughts do wander,
To your grave so far away.
Where we laid you dearest Slavko,
Ten years ago today.
Sadly missed by his FATHER, MOTHER, SISTER & BROTHER.

Dismissal Of Two Communists From Textile Union Upheld By International Council

Local 1874 Action On Coleman, Schusterman Gets Approval; Mease Expulsion Is Reversed

ASBURY PARK, N. J., June 6 (AP) — The International Executive Council of the CIO Textile Workers Union today upheld the action of a Cumberland, Md., local in expelling two admitted Communists from membership.

But the Council reversed the action of Local 1874, Textile Workers Union of America, in the case of a third man who had been ousted for allegedly "associating and collaborating" with Communists.

ROBERT L. CRAZE

HARRY G. GRIMES

This is a summary of the Council's actions in closed sessions today, as outlined by a TWUA spokesman:

The Council unanimously adopted the report of an appeal committee on the action of Local 1874.

While the vote on the report was unanimous, there was considerable debate over constitutional issues involved.

The case involved William B. Coleman, president of Local 1874 in 1946; Arthur Schusterman, recording secretary in 1946, and Clair R. Mease, a member of the local who never held office.

Coleman and Schusterman admitted at a Cumberland City Council meeting September 5, 1950 that they were party members. Mease was among their allies in local union affairs.

Last year, Local 1874 adopted a regulation barring Communists from membership and ousted all three men on that basis. Coleman and Schusterman also were charged by the local with violating the constitution of the International Union, which since 1941 has barred Nazis, Communists and Fascists from holding office of any kind in the union.

The appeals committee found that Local 1874's regulation was not in accord with the International Union constitution, and that expulsion could not be upheld on that basis.

However, the committee ruled that Coleman and Schusterman had clearly and knowingly violated the International Union constitution by becoming candidates for local office and by holding that office.

PE Employes Serve 25 Years

Two Allegany County residents, Robert L. Craze and Harry G. Grimes, this month completed 25 years service with the Potomac Edison Company.

Grimes also went with PE in 1926. Since that time he has been a member of the Cumberland District, serving in the Power and Line Departments. First employed as a laborer, he later served as groundman, lineman and assistant line superintendent. He took his present position, district line superintendent, in 1945. His address is RFD 6, Cumberland.

Md. Tourist Trade Ranked Fourth As Income Source

Maryland tourist trade ranked fourth as a source of income in 1950 according to estimates of the Fifth Federal Reserve District published in its monthly review.

The total income for the year to Free Staters from tourists was placed at $80,000,000. As an income producer the trade followed food manufacturing, textiles and apparel, and chemicals.

Tourist expenditures on a national basis have been variously calculated from 6 billion to 10 billion dollars. In any case, vacationing catering is one of the greatest industries in the country.

John P. Trimmer, Director, Department of Information of the State of Maryland, which officially promotes the tourist trade in the state, observed, "This substantial trade is obtained with a comparatively small amount of advertising and promotion.

"All the advertising is done privately, and the promotion is done by the state as well as private local groups. That the state gets a fair share of the tourist-vacation trade is not due to these efforts. It is due to the marvelous natural advantages that make Maryland one of the finest tourist and vacation lands in the nation.

"These advantages are the sound basis for our promotion slogan, 'America in Miniature.'

"For Maryland the most significant element is that the tourist dollar is not only so widely spread in business, but it is almost wholly a sales tax dollar.

"A sound promotion program including advertising, publicity and servicing inquiries along with a survey to keep a constant check of results could mean millions more to Maryland."

26 Ursuline Seniors Told Responsibility

Keyser Priest Delivers Address

"May God grant you the grace to realize your responsibility and the strength and courage to accomplish the objectives that challenge you."

So said Rev. Kenneth Rizer, pastor of the Church of the Assumption, Keyser, W. Va., as he addressed 26 girl graduates of Ursuline Academy last night in their commencement exercises at SS. Peter and Paul's Church.

Heavy Burden

"Past generations have placed the tremendous burden of world survival squarely upon your shoulders with the hope and expectation that you will bring to yourselves and all mankind a brighter tomorrow filled with peace and a plentitude of God's gifts," Father Rizer told the Ursuline Academy seniors.

Observing that confusion is the one word that might sum up the existing conditions, Father Rizer cited numerous evidences of confusion and indifference.

"Today civilization calls to you," the Keyser priest reminded the graduates. "It is a plea to you who are still innocent of the sins of our society to build a new world. Innocence that is growing into maturity has a strange strength that can combat evil and win. You are young. You have life ahead of you. How you will spend it will depend totally upon how you look at it, the things you consider most important, the extent to which you act upon your convictions, the work you put in upon yourselves to deepen these convictions—these are the things that will determine your futures," Father Rizer concluded.

Rev. Louis Glantz, pastor of SS. Peter and Paul's Church, presented diplomas and special awards. The graduates were Esther Miller, Dorothy Robinson, Mary Elizabeth Guenterberg, Rita Rose, Nancy Geatz, Jo Ann Wood, Elaine Brookman, Mary Davis, Angela Mantheiy, Patricia Madden, Dorothy Cookerly, Mary Alma Winters, Kathleen Davis, Bettie Ruppert, Suzanne Wilson, Charlotte Schriver, Mary Catherine Reissig, Margaret Alice Smith, Rose Marie Smith, Anna Mae Helmstetter, Margaret Lee Lynch, Dolores Martin, Jean Martz, Kathryn Hammersmith, Vivian Nies and Mary Teter.

Three special awards were made by Father Glantz. A four-year scholarship to Ursuline College, Louisville, Ky., was awarded to Mary Alma Winters, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Winters, Midland, for having the highest scholastic average for four years. Elaine Brookman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Brookman, Potomac Park, received a meal for having the second highest scholastic average for four years. Work Continued On Coney School

Work on the sewage disposal system at the new Lonaconing high school construction project was resumed Tuesday after the company hired an oiler.

The job was interrupted for a day over a labor dispute between Local 37-B, Operating Engineers, and the Baughman Construction Company. The union charged that the company failed to live up to rules requiring a union oiler on power equipment of one-half yard or five-ton capacity.

A local official said yesterday that the job was resumed after an oiler was hired. The company is excavating a sewage disposal system at the new school.

Home Damaged By Fire Second Time In 21 Days

Corriganville House Was Being Rebuilt

Fire struck for the second time within a month at the home of a Cash Valley Road family. The bungalow of Mr. and Mrs. Oda Crosten was gutted on May 15 in a $3,500 blaze, and Tuesday night at 11:30 o'clock Corriganville Volunteer firemen were summoned to the home and were three-quarters of an hour extinguishing a second fire.

Crosten had been working for the past couple weeks on rebuilding the home, according to firemen, and had been sleeping in the bungalow for the past few nights. On Tuesday evening he evidently left a lighted cigaret near the davenport and had gone to the home of his mother-in-law to sleep. His son, who has been staying at his grandmother's firemen said last night, saw a glow at the house about 800 feet away and ran to see what was wrong.

On discovering the blaze, he notified Corriganville firemen who rushed with two trucks to the scene. With the use of a booster tank the blaze was extinguished. Firemen report the floor around the davenport the elder Crosten occasionally slept on had burned away, causing the davenport to fall through to the cellar below. No other damage was reported.

The first fire occured at the same bungalow on May 15. In an early morning blaze the home was gutted and damages amounted to about $3,500, according to Fire Chief Harry Martz, Corriganville. No one was injured in that fire which started about 2 a.m.

Four fire trucks from the Corriganville and LaVale Volunteer Fire Departments battled the blaze for an hour before bringing it under control. About 500 feet of hose was used and water pumped from a nearby stream.

Neighboring homes were threatened but quick action by the firemen managed to keep the blaze confined to the immediate structure. The cause of the fire was unknown.

Vets Recalled To Arms May Resume Study

July 25 Deadline Has Modification

Area veterans who interrupted their GI Bill training at any time in the past, and later called back to military service, are reminded they will be permitted to continue studies after discharge even though it is after the July 25 deadline.

A veteran need not necessarily have interupted his GI Bill course specifically for the purpose of going back into uniform, in order to be entitled to post-cut-off date training.

In all cases conduct and progress must have been satisfactory for further training to be authorized after military duty. Training in all cases, after the deadline date must be resumed within a reasonable period of time after the GI returns to civilian life and must be completed by July 25, 1956.

An example cited by the VA is the case of a veteran who interrupted his GI Bill training which had been going along satisfactorily in 1949 in order to take a temporary job. In 1950 he was recalled to active duty. Even though discharged after the cut-off date, he would be eligible for further training, provided he had necessary entitlement for it.

The July 25 cut-off date will apply to one class of World War II veterans who interrupted training to reenter service. That class consists of those who have been released from their second period of service before the July 25 date.

Further information may be gotten from Thomas G. Kilduff, assistant State Service Officer, Liberty Trust Building, or phone 3971.

Gov. McKeldin Accuses Jones With Act Of Discrimination

Word Battle Over Coal Bill Veto Is Resumed

ANNAPOLIS, Md., June 6 (AP)—Governor McKeldin charged today that non-union miners were deliberately shut out of a legislative attempt to force the state to buy Maryland-mined coal.

He accused John T. Jones, Cumberland official of the United Mine Workers, of instigating the "act of discrimination."

McKeldin again defended his veto of the coal bill as he resumed a hot battle of words with the UMW leader.

Jones, president of District 16, twice this month rebuked McKeldin for his veto of the Maryland-Coal-For-Maryland-Institutions Act. It passed the 1951 General Assembly but was rejected by the governor on the theory miners living in the little Garrett County town of Crellin would be overlooked.

Crellin miners work at a non-union operation in West Virginia. Out-of-state mines would not have benefited by the measure.

McKeldin had suggested previously a union issue produced the fireworks over his veto. His latest retort, dated yesterday and released by the State House today, noted that Jones had called his concern with Crellin miners a "lame alibi."

McKeldin replied:

"Your letter, sir, convinces me for the first time that this exclusion was with deliberation and with malice, and that you were a prime mover in the act of discrimination."

Any state that passes laws discriminating against a minority "is quite unworthy of its status, and should abandon its pretense at government to mob rule by a majority," the governor said.

McKeldin declared his administration "will not be used to promote the schemes or the aggrandizement of any individuals or groups, as long as I can prevent it."

The governor repeated an earlier promise "to sponsor legislation for the benefit of all Maryland miners."

Jones wrote McKeldin a letter two weeks ago charging the governor had broken a campaign promise and Maryland miners were "the victims of your duplicity."

He said 1,600 men mine coal in Maryland, but only 42 from Crellin work in West Virginia.

State Welfare Department Changes Urged By Bureau

Important changes in the organization the Maryland Department of Public Welfare have been recommended in a study of the agency by the State Fiscal Research Bureau.

Among the recommendations were the ofllowing:

1. Reduction of the size of the State Board of Public Welfare from nine to five members, with a quorum of three.

2. Transfer of authority over job specifications and salaries to the State Employment Commissioner and the Standard Salary Board. In the case of the Baltimore City Department of Public Welfare, it was recommended these responsibilities be given to the city or the commissioner and the salary board.

3. Setting up the county boards of welfare as advisory rather than administrative.

4. Transfer of power to appoint county welfare directors to the State Welfare Department which would make appointments with the advice of the local board.

Dismissal Of Two Communists From Textile Union Upheld By International Council

Local 1874 Action On Coleman, Schusterman Gets Approval; Mease Expulsion Is Reversed

ASBURY PARK, N. J., June 6 (AP) — The International Executive Council of the CIO Textile Workers Union today upheld the action of a Cumberland, Md., local in expelling two admitted Communists from membership.

But the Council reversed the action of Local 1874, Textile Workers Union of America, in the case of a third man who had been ousted for allegedly "associating and collaborating" with Communists.

ROBERT L. CRAZE

HARRY G. GRIMES

This is a summary of the Council's actions in closed sessions today, as outlined by a TWUA spokesman:

The Council unanimously adopted the report of an appeal committee on the action of Local 1874.

While the vote on the report was unanimous, there was considerable debate over constitutional issues involved.

The case involved William B. Coleman, president of Local 1874 in 1946; Arthur Schusterman, recording secretary in 1946, and Clair R. Mease, a member of the local who never held office.

Coleman and Schusterman admitted at a Cumberland City Council meeting September 5, 1950 that they were party members. Mease was among their allies in local union affairs.

Last year, Local 1874 adopted a regulation barring Communists from membership and ousted all three men on that basis. Coleman and Schusterman also were charged by the local with violating the constitution of the International Union, which since 1941 has barred Nazis, Communists and Fascists from holding office of any kind in the union.

The appeals committee found that Local 1874's regulation was not in accord with the International Union constitution, and that expulsion could not be upheld on that basis.

However, the committee ruled that Coleman and Schusterman had clearly and knowingly violated the International Union constitution by becoming candidates for local office and by holding that office.

Md. Tourist Trade Ranked Fourth As Income Source

Maryland tourist trade ranked fourth as a source of income in 1950 according to estimates of the Fifth Federal Reserve District published in its monthly review.

The total income for the year to Free Staters from tourists was placed at $80,000,000. As an income producer the trade followed food manufacturing, textiles and apparel, and chemicals.

Tourist expenditures on a national basis have been variously calculated from 6 billion to 10 billion dollars. In any case, vacationing catering is one of the greatest industries in the country.

John P. Trimmer, Director, Department of Information of the State of Maryland, which officially promotes the tourist trade in the state, observed, "This substantial trade is obtained with a comparatively small amount of advertising and promotion.

"All the advertising is done privately, and the promotion is done by the state as well as private local groups. That the state gets a fair share of the tourist-vacation trade is not due to these efforts. It is due to the marvelous natural advantages that make Maryland one of the finest tourist and vacation lands in the nation.

"These advantages are the sound basis for our promotion slogan, 'America in Miniature.'

"For Maryland the most significant element is that the tourist dollar is not only so widely spread in business, but it is almost wholly a sales tax dollar.

"A sound promotion program including advertising, publicity and servicing inquiries along with a survey to keep a constant check of results could mean millions more to Maryland."

July 25 Deadline Has Modification

Area veterans who interrupted their GI Bill training at any time in the past, and later called back to military service, are reminded they will be permitted to continue studies after discharge even though it is after the July 25 deadline.

A veteran need not necessarily have interupted his GI Bill course specifically for the purpose of going back into uniform, in order to be entitled to post-cut-off date training.

In all cases conduct and progress must have been satisfactory for further training to be authorized after military duty. Training in all cases, after the deadline date must be resumed within a reasonable period of time after the GI returns to civilian life and must be completed by July 25, 1956.

An example cited by the VA is the case of a veteran who interrupted his GI Bill training which had been going along satisfactorily in 1949 in order to take a temporary job. In 1950 he was recalled to active duty. Even though discharged after the cut-off date, he would be eligible for further training, provided he had necessary entitlement for it.

The July 25 cut-off date will apply to one class of World War II veterans who interrupted training to reenter service. That class consists of those who have been released from their second period of service before the July 25 date.

Gov. McKeldin Accuses Jones With Act Of Discrimination

Word Battle Over Coal Bill Veto Is Resumed

ANNAPOLIS, Md., June 6 (AP)—Governor McKeldin charged today that non-union miners were deliberately shut out of a legislative attempt to force the state to buy Maryland-mined coal.

He accused John T. Jones, Cumberland official of the United Mine Workers, of instigating the "act of discrimination."

McKeldin again defended his veto of the coal bill as he resumed a hot battle of words with the UMW leader.

Jones, president of District 16, twice this month rebuked McKeldin for his veto of the Maryland-Coal-For-Maryland-Institutions Act. It passed the 1951 General Assembly but was rejected by the governor on the theory miners living in the little Garrett County town of Crellin would be overlooked.

Crellin miners work at a non-union operation in West Virginia. Out-of-state mines would not have benefited by the measure.

McKeldin had suggested previously a union issue produced the fireworks over his veto. His latest retort, dated yesterday and released by the State House today, noted that Jones had called his concern with Crellin miners a "lame alibi."

McKeldin replied:

"Your letter, sir, convinces me for the first time that this exclusion was with deliberation and with malice, and that you were a prime mover in the act of discrimination."

Any state that passes laws discriminating against a minority "is quite unworthy of its status, and should abandon its pretense at government to mob rule by a majority," the governor said.

McKeldin declared his administration "will not be used to promote the schemes or the aggrandizement of any individuals or groups, as long as I can prevent it."

The governor repeated an earlier promise "to sponsor legislation for the benefit of all Maryland miners."

Jones wrote McKeldin a letter two weeks ago charging the governor had broken a campaign promise and Maryland miners were "the victims of your duplicity."

He said 1,600 men mine coal in Maryland, but only 42 from Crellin work in West Virginia.

State Welfare Department Changes Urged By Bureau

Important changes in the organization the Maryland Department of Public Welfare have been recommended in a study of the agency by the State Fiscal Research Bureau.

Among the recommendations were the offlowing:

1. Reduction of the size of the State Board of Public Welfare from nine to five members, with a quorum of three.

2. Transfer of authority over job specifications and salaries to the State Employment Commissioner and the Standard Salary Board. In the case of the Baltimore City Department of Public Welfare, it was recommended these responsibilities be given to the city or the commissioner and the salary board.

3. Setting up the county boards of welfare as advisory rather than administrative.

4. Transfer of power to appoint county welfare directors to the State Welfare Department which would make appointments with the advice of the local board.
